17 EXECUTED BY TROOPS IN CHURCH WAR

Between 50 and 60 Forfeit Lives in Struggle Over Enforcing Religious Law

CALLES IN STATEMENT

President Declares That Government Is Battling Sedition, Not Religion

(By United Press)

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 11.—American officials here said they have received word from Guadalajara, confirming reports that between 50 and 60 persons were killed in rioting when religious laws were made effective. At present, all is quiet there.

Arriving from Morelia, in the state of Michoacan, Archbishop Leopold Ruiz Cisneros said 40 persons, including two priests, were killed there. The number includes 17 who, he says, were executed by troops because of religious rioting at San Juan. He also said 14 persons had been killed in the last week at Irapuato.

Declaring the government's fight was not against the church, but against seditious members of the clergy, President Calles has told a group of American tourists that "taking over of the churches was necessary because the vast holdings of the church enabled groups to thwart the government."

Discussing the situation with the Americans, who were led by Dr. Alva Taylor, of Indianapolis, he said that, had the Catholic church in Mexico maintained the position held by the Catholic churchmen in the United States, there would have been no dispute with the government.

PREDICTS REVOLUTION

THOUGHTFUL MEXICO PASADENA, Aug. 11.—Richard H. Cole, outstanding American authority on Mexican problems, predicted in an interview here today that, within 90 days, Mexico will be in the throes of a revolution which will sweep President Calles from power.

Cole declared that President Calles' enforcement of the religious regulations "is just a bit of sophistry to hoodwink the rest of the world," and that the present program of the Mexican president includes confiscation of all property held by foreign investors.

Cole was a close friend and adviser of two Mexican presidents, Calles and Carranza, and during their stormy careers as chief executives of Mexico, he was their personal representative at Washington. "If the embargo on arms is not lifted to permit Mexicans to settle their differences in their own way, Mexico will be in a state of anarchy within 90 days," he asserted.

"Furthermore, if Calles is allowed to continue his fight against religious liberty, South American republics may yet be drawn into the trouble."

"The Mexican people are being terrorized and the press is muzzled. Calles is setting himself up as a virtual dictator."

"Those who oppose this rule by force only wait leadership of a strong man. When that leader takes command of the unorganized forces of the country, Mexico will witness a revolution more decisive than any experienced in 50 years."

Catholics Launch Temperance Drive

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—A new nationwide temperance drive was launched here today, when the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America, in annual convention, adopted unanimously resolutions creating a fund "for an efficient propaganda against intemperance."

The resolutions condemned "drinking habits of society, particularly at weddings," and protested against "the false principles which are being inculcated in the minds of youth."

Edward P. J. O'Callaghan, Oakland, N. J., president of the union, was re-elected unanimously.

Air Mail Survey Plane In Bay City

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 11.—The M-1 monoplane, from San Diego, engaged in a final survey of the Pacific coast air mail route, landed at 8:50 a. m., today, at Crissy field. Piloted by Richard Bowman, and carrying a United Press correspondent as passenger, the monoplane took off from San Diego Monday morning, stopping at Los Angeles and thence following the charted air mail path north to San Francisco bay.

The monoplane is of the type which recently broke the flying record from Seattle to San Diego, though no records are being attempted on the survey flight.

Three Boys In Stolen Yacht Hunt

SAN PEDRO, Aug. 11.—After a 48-hour search for three unidentified boys reported drifting helplessly at sea in the stolen Long Beach yacht Madway, the local coast guard unit announced today it had failed to find any trace of the craft.

The boat, belonging to G. Robinson, of Long Beach, was last seen Sunday morning, it was reported, when three unknown youths were in it without permission of the owner.

Following reports that the yacht and its crew had landed at Avalon and put out to sea again, the coast guard cutter CG-257 was dispatched in an effort to locate the boys.

AIMEE INQUIRY IS DROPPED BY GRAND JURORS

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 11.—The Los Angeles county grand jury adjourned today without taking action on the theft of evidence in the Aimee Semple McPherson investigation.

The jurors, it was learned, were deadlocked on the question of compelling the member accused of destroying important evidence and decided to drop the incident.

When the grand jury reconvenes tomorrow, it will take up a probe of liquor running and hijacking in Los Angeles county, indicating the McPherson case has been permanently dropped.

The evangelist was back at Angelus temple today, following a two-day vacation at Lake Arrowhead, San Bernardino mountain resort.

She had no comment to make on the grand jury scandal, prompted by the disappearance of two grocery slips in the hand-writing of the woman who occupied a cottage at Carmel with Kenneth G. Ormiston, missing radio man.

"I had a fine vacation and feel greatly rested," she said. "We will carry on as usual at the temple. We have hundreds of new converts, praise the Lord."

ILLINOIS PRIMARY LAW HELD INVALID

DIXON, Ill., Aug. 11.—The Illinois primary law was declared invalid today by three judges in the circuit court, who listened to testimony in a test case brought by William J. McAlpine, Dixon, politician.

It is the fourth time in the history of Illinois that primary laws have been declared invalid.

State's Attorney Mark S. Seller announced, after the decision was rendered, that the case would be appealed to the supreme court immediately.

Coogan Guard In Grave Condition

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 11.—Joseph Black, night watchman at the Jackie Coogan residence, remained in a critical condition today, victim of a gun battle with Don McRae, former chauffeur for the boy film star.

McRae, accused of shooting Black in a fight on the Coogan lawn, early yesterday, was still at large.

His recent discharge as Jackie's chauffeur had nothing to do with the shooting, in the belief of Coogan, said "McRae was drunk and quarrelsome," said the elder Coogan.

Quarrel Related At Gaines Trial

SEATTLE, Aug. 11.—Testimony that Wallace C. Gaines, on trial for the alleged murder of his daughter, Sylvia, quarreled with the girl about a month before the slaying, and pulled her from his automobile, was introduced by the prosecution today. The incident was related by Andreas Naegle, a druggist.

U. S. SUES MILLER ESTATE FOR 7 MILLIONS IN TAXES

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 11.—Suit for more than $7,000,000 against trustees and the estate of the late Henry Miller, California land and cattle baron, was on file in the federal court here today.

The government is seeking that amount on allegations that Miller, prior to his death, in 1916, disposed of approximately $40,000,000 worth of his holdings in an effort to avoid payment of inheritance taxes by his estate.

The government's complaint holds that Miller made his last will on April 17, 1913, and on the same day executed a document, purporting to be a deed of trust, by which he conveyed all his holdings to those who were later named as trustees of his estate. This was done solely for the purpose of evading inheritance taxes, the complaint charges.

TWO BURNED TO DEATH IN AUTO WRECK

Nyles Hyatt and Daughter, Of Burlingame, Perish on Road Near Atascadero

Bodies of Coast Advertising Man and Child Charred Beyond Recognition

(By United Press)

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Aug. 11.—Nyles Hyatt, prominent Burlingame Kiwanian and advertising manager of the Oakland Enquirer, was burned to death with his young daughter, early today, in an automobile wreck, two miles north of Atascadero.

The charred bodies of the man and his daughter were taken to Atascadero, while Burlingame authorities and the Burlingame-San Mateo Kiwanis club, of which Hyatt was secretary, were notified.

Enroute to Southland Hyatt, with his daughter and a dog as companions, was enroute to Southern California, on vacation. Stopping overnight at Paso Robles, they made a before-dawn departure for San Luis Obispo.

Near Atascadero, the automobile left the road, plunged into a ditch and overturned.

Flames broke out and attracted the attention of a few minutes later of W. A. Barnes, Los Angeles, driving in the same direction. He did not stop, but continued to Atascadero, where he notified the constable.

A fire truck was rushed to the scene and the blaze was extinguished. Hyatt, his daughter and the dog, burned unrecognizably, were removed from the wreckage.

Cause Is Unknown No cause for the accident could be determined.

Hyatt, after leaving the Oakland Enquirer, went to Arizona, and became prominent in Phoenix and other cities. He conducted an advertising agency for several years, returning then to California.

He took up his residence at Burlingame and again entered civic and business activities. He was between 45 and 50 years old.

He is survived by his widow and three other daughters, the eldest aged 12.

Lillian Cannon To Try Channel

CAPE GRIS NEZ, France, Aug. 11.—Lillian Cannon, the Baltimore swimmer, today decided to make an attempt to break Gertrude Ederle's channel swimming record on Sunday. If weather conditions prevent the attempt then, Lillian planned to enter the water Monday.

Miss Cannon has been in training more than a month and, during Gertrude's successful swim last Friday, Lillian accompanied her the entire distance on a tug, occasionally diving over to swim with her friendly rival.

Lillian feels that she learned much from observing Miss Ederle's tactics and hopes to be able to reduce the time for swimming the channel below 14 hours and a half—Gertrude's time.

Body of Woman Found In Lake

SAN BERNARDINO, Aug. 11.—Authorities here investigated today the death of a woman, partially identified as Mrs. Clyde Pray, 34, of Redlands, whose body was found floating in Green Valley lake, in the San Bernardino mountains.

Emil Pray, of Redlands, whose wife disappeared yesterday, was expected here today to confirm identification of the body.

Officials are puzzled by circumstances of the tragedy and after a preliminary investigation, expressed belief that the woman met death by violence.

MRS. FERGUSON DETERMINED TO REMAIN IN RACE

Texas Governor Exercises Woman's Prerogative of Changing Mind

(By United Press)

AUSTIN, Tex., Aug. 11.—Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson will remain in the Texas Democratic gubernatorial contest and participate in the "run-off" primary against Dan Moody, attorney general, who led the field of five candidates in the recent primary.

In a statement issued today, the woman executive said she would remain in the race, "regardless of the consequences."

Concerning her disregard of the challenge she issued Moody that she would withdraw from the race if Moody polled more votes than she, provided he would agree to withdraw if he trailed Mrs. Ferguson—the governor claimed Moody did not accept her proposition.

Mrs. Ferguson claimed she would have led in the first primary, had not the "200,000 Butte bolters" been allowed to participate. The woman governor referred to those voting for Dr. George Butte, Republican, candidate in the last general election, when Governor Ferguson was elected.

Since Moody failed to receive a majority, a second primary is necessary between him and the runner-up, Governor Ferguson.

The governor claimed the Ku Klux Klan had aided in Moody's success in the first primary.

The statement declared: "It has now developed that Moody's election was the result of an edict of the wizard of the Klan, issued as far back as November, 1925."

She declared that the Klan raised money to be sent to San Antonio and the Rio Grande country to "employ people to intimidate, and if necessary to offer violence to priests and nuns."

POMERENE IS OHIO VICTOR IN PRIMARY

Democratic Senator Wins Nomination from Woman Running on Dry Platform

DONAHEY IS IN FAVOR

Governor Is Selected by His Party As Candidate For Third Term in Office

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 11.—Myers Y. Cooper, of Cincinnati, and Vic Donahey, of New Philadelphia, will be the opposing candidates for governor of Ohio in the fall elections, returns today from yesterday's primary indicated.

Governor Donahey has been renominated by the Democrats by a wide margin. He was leading his major opponent, A. P. Sandles, of Ottawa, nearly four to one.

Thad H. Brown, who last night commanded a lead over Cooper, virtually admitted defeat today.

"It looks now as if Mr. Cooper is the winner," Brown said.

This statement followed one by Florence Allen, dry, in which she conceded defeat by Alton Pomerene, wet, Democratic candidate for the U. S. senate.

Unofficial returns from three-fourths of the precincts from the Republican gubernatorial primary showed:

Cooper, 123,749; Brown, 123,473. For the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, Donahey's majority was not the "200,000 Butte bolters" been allowed to participate.

The woman governor referred to those voting for Dr. George Butte, Republican, candidate in the last general election, when Governor Ferguson was elected.

PRISONER IN FIRM DENIAL OF KILLINGS

Inmate, Who Escaped from Patton, However, Admits Difficulties with Women

HE FITS DESCRIPTION

Suspect Tells of Having Been in Cities Where Mystery Slayings Occur

(By United Press)

SAN BERNARDINO, Aug. 11.—Philip H. Brown, 31, escaped inmate of Patton insane asylum, held here in connection with the murders of women in various Pacific coast cities, was partially identified by Santa Barbara authorities today as the suspected slayer of Mrs. Ollie B. Russell.

Mrs. Russell was attacked and strangled to death in her rooming house at Santa Barbara, on June 24 last. An asserted keyhole witness of the attack furnished a description of the slayer, which checks with the prisoner here, according to Lester Desgrandchamp, chief of police and District Attorney Clarence Ward, of Santa Barbara.

Would Take Prisoner The Santa Barbara officials requested permission of local authorities to take possession of the prisoner and take him north for trial.

"He fits in every way the description of the slayer as furnished by an eye-witness to the attack," said Chief Desgrandchamp.

The murder of Mrs. Russell was accomplished under almost identical circumstances as the slayings of Miss Clara M. Newman, San Francisco spinster, and Mrs. Laura J. Beals, San Jose apartment house manager.

Brown, in an interview, denied the wholesale murders to which authorities declare he has confessed, but admitted he "had trouble" with women at San Francisco, San Jose, Santa Barbara, and Los Angeles.

Didn't Strangle Any "I had trouble with several women, but I didn't strangle any of them," he said.

The prisoner, who admitted he was an inmate of Patton insane asylum in 1916, denied he was connected with the attack and murder of Sylvia Gaines, Seattle nurse, whose father, Wallace C. Gaines, is now on trial for that crime.

"I have not been in Seattle since last December," he said. "I was headed for the east when they arrested me on a 'vag' charge. I don't believe I killed anybody."

Authorities here are making a careful check of the prisoner's finger-prints and other identification marks for comparison with records held by San Francisco police.

Brown, known also as Philip Cameron, is five feet, eight inches in height, and has a dark complexion.

Prisoner Is Quizzed The prisoner was questioned in detail during the day concerning the unsolved murders of women in Seattle, San Francisco, San Jose and Santa Barbara.

Sheriff Shay announced at noon that Brown admitted leaving San Francisco on a steamer on May 10, for Seattle. He made no admissions concerning the Gaines murder, however, it was said.

Brown's "confession" thus far has been vague and inconsistent, according to officers. He admits, checking and beating women in various coast cities, but it not certain whether he strangled any of his victims to death, it was said.

VICTORIA HAS DRYDOCK FOR LARGEST SHIPS

VICTORIA, B. C., Aug. 11.—The British empire's largest drydock, and Canada's strongest bid for expansion in Pacific shipping, is ready for business here, after five years of construction work and the expenditure of about $6,000,000.

Carved out of the solid rock of Esquimalt harbor and equipped with the most modern machinery obtainable, the gigantic dock will be available from now on for the berthing of Canadian ships and those of other nations, for in its ample length the longest vessel afloat will find accommodation. Two ordinary sized ships, in fact, can be berthed simultaneously within the basin, which, for this purpose, is divided into twin compartments.

Largest Drydock

Nowhere in the British empire is there a drydock of comparable size and in the entire world there is only one larger—the commonwealth dock in Boston.

The opening of the new dock is one of the most important events in the development of Canada's commerce on the Pacific. Up to the present this country's shipping has been seriously handicapped by the lack of drydock facilities for its largest vessels. The 1100-foot basin at Esquimalt will be available for the repairing and overhauling of the largest trans-Pacific liners, that now undergo this work in the Orient, and this important business, the Canadian government believes, will be transferred here in the future. Foreign shipping probably also will use the dock in a large way, while it will be invaluable for the repair of ships limping in through the Straits of Juan de Fuca, the "Graveyard of the Pacific."

Important Adjunct

From the standpoint of naval defense, the opening of the dock is significant also. The necessity of providing adequate berthing facilities for naval ships operating on the Pacific was one of the chief considerations which influenced the Canadian government in undertaking the expensive dock project. In case of war on the Pacific the drydock would become one of the chief factors in the defense of this coast. Lying near the probable scene of naval operations, it would be used for the quick repair of ships damaged in naval actions outside the straits. Without such facilities a fleet defending the coast would lack a base essential for successful operation.

The dock represents a triumph of engineering in the face of serious difficulties. More than once the work received setbacks that might have caused enormous losses, but the engineers of the public works department have overcome every obstacle presented by the nature of the dock's location.

Built on Solid Rock

The entire dock is built on a solid rock foundation and is, in reality, a gigantic chasm chiseled during countless days of drilling and blasting. The north wall of the basin, the inner end and a portion of the south wall also are built against the natural rock. The sides of the dock, built of huge slabs of granite, resemble a giant's stairway down to the long flat bottom.

The pumping plant needed to empty the basin consists of three main pumps, with a capacity of 60,000 gallons each per minute and is capable of emptying the dock in four hours, or a 750-foot section in two hours, and a half. There are two auxiliary pumps with a capacity of 9000 gallons each per minute and a six-inch pump for removing seepage water and drainage when a vessel is in dock.

MOTHER OF INJURED CHILD SHOOTS AT AUTO, THINKING MOTORISTS ARE KIDNAPERS

Unaware that her small daughter had been run down and injured by an automobile while she was playing in the street in front of her home, 334 West Washington street, shortly before noon, Mrs. H. J. Flynn fired a shot from a pistol at two men, who were attempting to rush the child to a hospital, according to a report made this afternoon to the police.

The girl, Willie Flynn, 5, was not seriously hurt. She ran out from behind an ice wagon, parked on the street, directly in front of an automobile driven by Van Robinson, and occupied by Robinson and a friend, and was knocked to the pavement. The car was stopped and the girl picked up and placed in the machine. The driver was starting the car when Mrs. Flynn is alleged to have rushed to the porch of her home and fired at the men.

According to a report made after an investigation by police officers, Mrs. Flynn was under the impression that her daughter was being kidnaped by the men and did not know of the accident at the time she fired the shot.

The Flynn child was taken to the Santa Ana Valley hospital, where it was found that she was not seriously hurt. She suffered cuts and bruises about the face and head and, after given medical attention, was removed to her home.

Police said no arrests would be made.

SHIP DAMAGED BY COLLISION IN FOG

SEATTLE, Wn., Aug. 11.—The steamer Willhilo, bound from the east to San Francisco and Seattle, was damaged in a collision with the steamer Colusa, off Destruction island, at the entrance of the Straits of Juan de Fuca, late yesterday afternoon.

Latest reports to the harbor radio here, however, were that the vessel was able to proceed on its own steam toward Puget sound.

The crash was believed to have occurred during a heavy fog. The collision carried away the port anchor and chain of the Colusa and a large hole was cut in her bow. Her stern was damaged and the impact caused a leak in the fore peak tank.

The Colusa was proceeding from Puget Sound to Astoria.

The Willhilo sustained no damage below the water line, advices received here said.

The Colusa is owned by W. R. Grier, a local company, while the Willhilo is operated by the Williams Steamship company.

Capital Letter

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—"Big business," the power behind the present administration in Washington, goes into the congressional campaign, which is just starting now, handicapped the worst way.

It's a campaign in which a record expenditure of money was indicated as almost vitally necessary if "big business" expected to hold its own in the next congress. All the signs are that political public sentiment has undergone a marked change, throughout large parts of the country in the last few months—a change which "big business" cannot but strenuously disapprove.

Notably, the tariff is under attack. The tariff is "big business" most prized possession.

"Big business" first thought in such emergencies—it's been demonstrated in many a campaign before—is to spend plenty of money. Generally speaking, it turns the trick.

But this time—one of the most threatening outlooks "big business" ever faced—it's prevented from spending much.

If anything, the filibuster which, just before congress adjourned, prevented the senate from adopting a resolution limiting campaign expenditures, only made matters worse.

They're worse because the charge is being made now that the filibuster's deliberate purpose was to leave "big business" free to spend all it wished on the coming election, so as to remain in control of the next congress, at least, whatever may be the complexion of future ones.

That may not have been Senator Cameron's motive in conducting the filibuster. In fact, he said it wasn't. Nevertheless, the story is in circulation.

Now, if "big business" goes ahead and blows itself, as unquestionably it is almost irresistibly impelled to do, the uproar will be terrific, win or lose—so bad that "big business" shows symptoms of being scared, in advance.

It will also take a mighty nervy congressman-elect to present himself in Washington in 1927 under the least suspicion that money won his fight.

True, the La Follette and Neely resolutions having been lost in the congressional adjournment jam, there's no definitely fixed limit on what may be spent, but everybody has a pretty general idea as to what is too much.

On the other hand, unless it unbelt, "big business" is almost sure it will lose the senate, and maybe the lower house.

To be sure, a tariff reduction congress couldn't accomplish anything with a high protection president on the job, unless it favored reduction by a large enough majority to override his veto, which is entirely too much to expect.

However, it would make a barren last half of this administration. It is a hint, likewise, at grave perils for "big business" in 1928.

The truth is, "big business" is beginning to realize that it overreached itself.

While nobody was looking, it quietly helped itself to about all the prosperity there was in the dish. The others have noticed it now and are hollering for some of their own, or else the return of part of what "big business" took.

But there doesn't seem to be any surplus and it's painful to have to give anything back.

General Lord Is Coolidge Guest

PAUL SMITH'S, N. Y., Aug. 11.—With the arrival of General Lord, director of the budget the executive summer entertainment season has begun at White Pine camp. More than a score of distinguished guests will visit the president and Mrs. Coolidge for social or political reasons. Secretary Hoover will come on Friday for a week-end sojourn at the summer White House.

The president's visitors are left to seek their own diversion in fishing, motoring, open air bowling, tennis, swimming and golf. Six cabins are available for guests.

Those who care for fishing, the president's favorite recreation, may accompany him.

ITALIAN CITIES ASK RETURN OF OLD SEA CODES

ROME, Aug. 11.—Amalfi and Naples are striving to induce the Italian government to begin diplomatic negotiations for the return from the Imperial Library of Vienna of the ancient volumes containing Amalfi's maritime code, which dates back to 1131 and was until 1570 the recognized law of the Mediterranean. These volumes, 76 in number, have been held in Vienna for over 150 years. Just why they were not returned to Italy after the armistice with other books on art objects is not known.

Few in Italy Know of Books

Few in Italy knew of their existence until 32 years ago, when a librarian, Thomas Carr, who was gathering material for a book on "The Customs of the Town of Amalfi," discovered in Venice that at one time they formed part of the private library of the Doge Marco Foscarini, who reigned between 1696 and 1763, and was a historian as well as a statesman. The Doge had been commissioned by the Council of Ten to continue the history of Venice begun by Cardinal Benito in 1552, and presumably obtained these books to help in that work. Carr learned that the Doge's library was willed at his death to the Imperial Library in Vienna; and upon searching the archives there, he found the bulky code listed in number 8228.

The Tavole Amalfitane, as the code is called, is valuable because it throws light on the history of Amalfi's once great sea commerce, and her consulate. Evidently the commission which compiled the list of the books which Italy wished returned from Austria overlooked these volumes; or possibly they asked for them, but were told by the Viennese government that books given as a legacy were not in any sense in the same category with those taken by force or presented to the emperor by citizens who had stolen them from Italian libraries. Whatever the reason, it remains to be seen whether Amalfi will regain possession of her maritime code.

ASKS $5000 FOR DOG

JAMAICA, N. Y., Aug. 11.—"He was only a cur, but I loved him." That was the explanation of William Bernard, manufacturer, of his suit against Dr. Harry C. Crawford, veterinarian, for $5000 damages for the death of his dog, Buddy. The dog died after an injection of serum for rabies.

A Crushed Hand Is Bad Business

Don't Be Afraid to Smile

A broken bone, a sprain, a crushed hand are painful and unfortunate. None of us wants either of them in his Christmas stocking. But all of these are nothing by way of affliction compared to a pus cavity at the root of a tooth. Like the inroads of that dread and insidious disease, called cancer, pus cavities do not complain for a long time. Often it is too late to save the tooth before you are aware of your trouble. The X-Ray is the only known way of making certain. You ought to have your teeth examined frequently by a conscientious expert. Our services for this work (except X-Ray) is without charge to you.

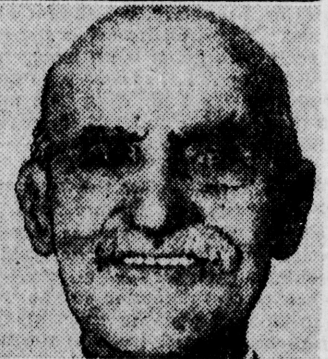

No Physical or Financial Pain Here!

We reduce overhead expenses. Our supplies are bought in larger quantities at better prices. These, and other savings, we pass on to you without lowering the high class of all the work we do.

Over three-fourths of our present work comes from patients who were sent here by people for whom we have done work. No better recommendation could be had.

Now He Can Smile

No Half Way Measures

Equipped as we are with our own laboratory, X-Ray, etc., there are no half-way measures. No make-shifts. No "I-guess-that-will-be-all-rights!" Everything is right. The plates we make in fit, feel, bite and wear can't be beaten at any price. The fact that 75% of our business comes from recommendations of former patrons ought to be evidence enough of how we do our work.

FILLINGS—Gold, Silver, Alloys, Porcelain, etc. (By properly preparing the cavity our fillings stay put).
CROWNS—Jacket Crowns of Gold and Porcelain. (We can match your teeth perfectly).
BRIDGES—A good bridge is a triumph in dental skill.
PLATES—We make these in our own laboratory. Many others send the impression out to be made. Judge for yourself.
PYORRHEA—Treatments offered.

A WORD OF COMFORT
Admiration is but the prelude to aspiration.
When you see how splendidly some men rise from their grief and go on to do their duty well, but you can not but admire them. Then you aspire to be as brave and strong yourself and set your sights on the task of determining to set a similar example to your fellows, and you will have the strength of ten.

While in Santa Ana Guests Meet Many Former Friends

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Fairbanks and Mrs. Harriet Earl of 401 West Eighth street entertained Monday in honor of Mrs. Walter L. Riley and son, Robert, of Portland, Ore.

Mrs. Riley and her son are en route from Minneapolis, where they attended the graduation exercises of the State university from which Gordon Riley graduated.

At a charming little luncheon Monday the guests met Mrs. M. M. Holmes and Mrs. H. E. Wheeler of Santa Ana and Mrs. Horace Newman of Orange who were also guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fairbanks and Mrs. Earl.

During the remainder of the afternoon many friends of the Rileys called to see them before they continued on their homeward way.

Mrs. Riley and Robert Riley returned Monday evening to Pasadena where a brother of Mrs. Riley resides. They will leave for Portland Wednesday after having spent two months in the middle west and Southern California.

SANTA ANAS WILL ATTEND BEACH MEET

The Santa Ana Association of Insurance Agents will be represented at the state convention of insurance agents in Long Beach, in October, it was announced today, following a decision reached at a meeting Monday of the organization. Delegates to the convention will be selected by the organization September 13.

That small compensation policies do not pay and that insurance agents should use great care in issuing burglary insurance was the advice given insurance agents at the meeting by Freeman P. Davis, assistant manager of the Los Angeles district of the Travelers Insurance company. Davis' topic was "Workmen's Compensation and Burglary Insurance."

R. G. Cartwright and J. Wiley Harris were chairmen of the program committee.

King's Boss Is On Retired List

LONDON, Aug. 11.—George Henry Flewelling, a locomotive engineer, who claims the distinction of being the only man in the world who has made King George who he was told, has retired after 48 years with the Great Western railway.

The incident when the king took "orders" from the engineer happened at Swindon, in 1924, during an inspection trip when His Majesty drove a train for a mile and a quarter.

"The king did it under my strict supervision," said Flewelling, telling of the experience, "and as His Majesty knew nothing about the mechanism of a railway engine, he had to do everything that I told him to do."

RAVINA W. NAME OF ART WORLD CENTER

RAVINA, Ill., Aug. 11.—Bayreuth, Oberammergau, Ravina!

Fifteen years' devotion to a high purpose has added to the other two this name of "the opera house in the woods," now a recognized world center of art.

Here, from every state in the union and from foreign countries, music lovers gather. Here night after night throughout the summer, when musical activity elsewhere except in South America and Covent Garden, London, is at a standstill, are presented a galaxy of the most widely known of the world's singers in major grand opera.

It is a daring institution, for reason after season it has dared to present 10 weeks and three days of grand opera by artists chosen from the greatest winter opera houses. It has dared to make its home in a beautiful suburb and invite its patrons to take a journey of more than 20 miles from Chicago, to hear its performances.

Fame Carried to Europe
Ravina is an expression of the belief of Louis Eckstein, who made it possible, that "every man, regardless of ideas born of humdrum, has a thirst for finer and better things." For several years it was better known in Europe than in America, because its fame was carried there by the artists and patrons.

Bayreuth, Eckstein believes, may be compared with Bayreuth and to Oberammergau, but in the final analysis it stands alone as the exponent of musical education. It brings the best that is to be had in opera within the reach of all the people.

Its setting is unique. It is nestled away among glens of trees and flowers, a brief distance from the shore of Lake Michigan. There is nothing artificial about it. Beauty of its surroundings is adding yearly to its popularity as a vacation place, where vacation and music may be had together.

Otto H. Kahn, of New York, chairman of the board of directors of the Metropolitan Opera company who made a special trip here for the opening night this season, pointed to another of Ravina's extraordinary features. Its rare acoustical properties resulted from an act of nature, giving it a physical effect that could not be duplicated even with the wealth of Croesus.

Kahn Envises Setting
"This opera house," Kahn said, "is like a fine old Stradivarius violin, like that nature has mellowed. We would give anything if we could build an opera house in New York with acoustics such as these, but it cannot be done. Here it is that nature has been the architect."

Ravina Opera house, built in 1915 for orchestral concerts, has a wooden ceiling, which is arched like the body of a violin, and is made of pine of a peculiar quality which, during the years, has retained its life. It has been subjected to correct musical vibrations and like the instrument of old Cremona, it is as responsive to tone as though it were alive. In the opera house or at the gates, nearly a block distant all is audible.

Three Monsters Captured
By Navy Men Put in San Diego Zoo

SAN DIEGO, Aug. 11.—The ships of the American navy have traveled far and have dropped their hooks into strange waters; but never did a good man of war come staggering into port with a queer cargo than the one which Eagle boat No. 34 brought in on her fore deck the other day.

Lolling in huge wooden cages were three animals of a species that had been thought extinct—sea elephants.

If you can imagine a rather sleepy seal crossed with an African elephant you can get some sort of an idea of what these creatures look like. The largest of the three, a bull, weighs a ton and a half; the smallest, half a ton.

Have Flexible Snouts
Their skins are heavy and warty. They have nine-inch noses, not unlike miniature elephants' trunks. They are ponderous, placid beasts. The tale of their capture is an interesting one.

Years ago, sea elephants were common on the Pacific coast, but with the advance of commerce along its shores, they rapidly diminished in numbers, and at the opening of this century it was thought none was left. But, during the World war, a naval patrol boat, nosing about the rocky shores of Guadalupe island, off the coast of Lower California, hunting a hidden German wireless station, discovered some of them basking on an isolated beach.

News of the find was reported to the Mexican and American governments. The Mexican authorities adopted stringent measures to protect the little herd, and presently it was discovered that the animals were multiplying with great speed.

Accordingly, the American government recently got permission to send an expedition to capture three of them, and Eagle boat No. 34, carrying a detachment of marines in addition to her regular naval crew, set out for Guadalupe island.

500 Sea Elephants
After two days' sailing, the boat reached the island just at dawn. There, on a narrow beach that skirted rocky cliffs half a mile high, the sailors saw a tremendous herd of sea elephants—500 of them, at least—lolling idly about on the sand.

A party of marines and sailors put off in small boats and approached with great caution. They weren't altogether sure that sea elephants weren't man eaters, and there's nothing like discretion.

The caution proved needless, however. The bulky animals allowed the explorers to walk up and touch them. They fought among themselves, but apparently without inflicting any damage on one another. Three wooden cages were floated ashore. Now a problem arose: how to get the animals into the cages? A marine finally solved it by walking up to a tremendous bull, waving his hands at him and saying "shoo," gently, but firmly. The bull meekly backed into the cage. In a couple of minutes more, two cows were caged, and the floating cages were towed out to the ship.

The marines had landed and had the situation well in hand.

Getting Them on Deck
Getting the animals onto the deck proved another tough job. The cows were hoisted aboard easily, but the bull was so heavy that the tackle by which he was being swung aloft broke and he fell into the ocean, spilling two boat loads of swearing sailors into the briny. The tackle was reinforced and the bull, grunting his astonishment, was finally stowed away on the fore deck.

All the way back to San Diego, streams of salt water were kept playing on the animals. By radio, a traveling crane was ordered to meet the ship at its pier. But the crane was too light, and the bull fell into the water again. By dint of much effort, and the aid of half the entire naval base complement, he was fished out, and the three animals were loaded on trucks and carted off to the San Diego zoo.

Satisfied with New Home
They are now living in a big tank, originally built for seals. It has an artificial sand beach at one end, and the strange creatures seem well enough satisfied with their new quarters. They eat about 100 pounds of fish per day apiece.

Other zoos have offered large sums of money for them, but they will not be sold. To remove them to a different climate, it is feared, would prove fatal.

So they will stay in the San Diego zoo, weird mementoes of one of the strangest fishing expeditions ever participated in by the American navy.

CHANGE BAD MEN INTO GOOD ONES

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Army chiefs believe they have found out how to make bad men into honest, law abiding citizens.

At least they are gratified over the results of their experiments with prisoners in the Leavenworth disciplinary barracks and have decided, for that reason, to extend their reform work to other institutions of the kind, including those at Fort Jay, N. Y., and Alcatraz, Calif.

The reform movement in Leavenworth was started by Col. G. O. Cress, commandant, with a small group of prisoners. These were given a course of studies in character building, consisting of physical drills to encourage manly carriage, instructions regarding the importance of personal cleanliness and appearance in public and class work in expression and clear thinking.

A report on the experiment given Secretary Davis, of the war department, by the adjutant general, shows that the results already obtained surpass expectations.

The character training is given in addition to the craft and vocational courses which aim to provide the prisoners with useful trades in civil life.

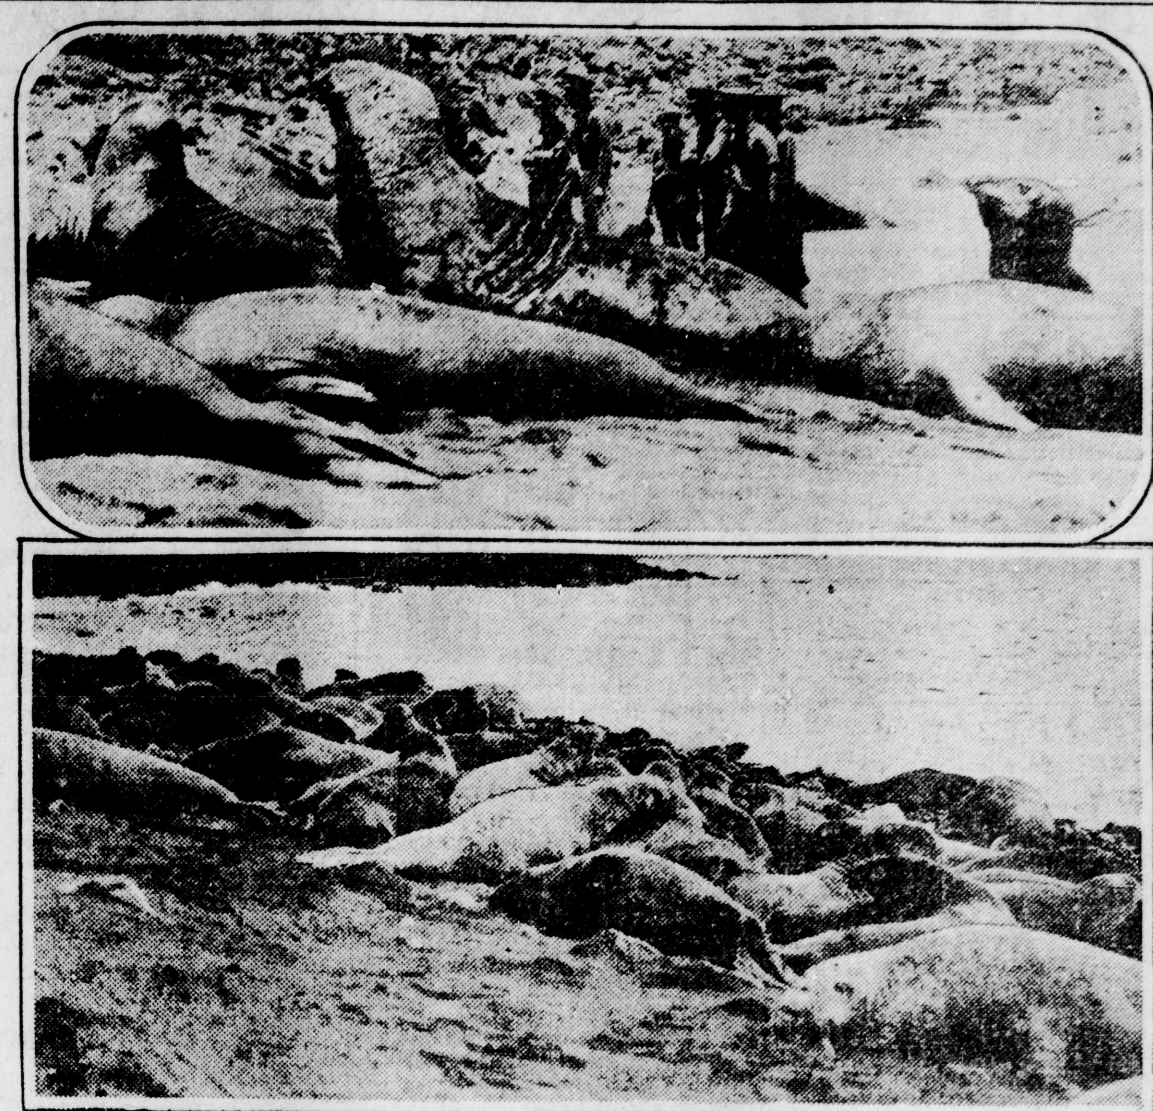

Police News

Ray Dunn, 23, truck driver, of 217 West Eighteenth street, Los Angeles, was arrested last night by Motorcycle Officer Ozmun, Anaheim, and booked in the county jail on a charge of possession of intoxicating liquor.

Charles Lenoar, 44, 414 Fair Oaks street, Pasadena, was arrested last night by Officers Murray and Elliott on a vagrancy charge. He was lodged in the county jail.

J. C. McDonald reported to the sheriff's office last night that he had found an abandoned motorcycle in front of his place on West Chapman street, near the Orange county hospital. The letters, "U. S. M. C." were found on the gas tank, indicating that the motorcycle belonged to the government.

WATER IS TREATED TO PREVENT MOSS

"Minor treatments of the Olive street reservoir to prevent the growth of water moss on the bottom of the reservoir were completed yesterday, under the direction of Dr. V. G. Presson, county health officer," said Mayor F. L. Purinton, this morning.

Purinton said that, as a result of the treatments, a slight difference in the taste of the water might be noticed in portions of the city for a day or two longer. This taste, he said, was noticeable yesterday.

Dr. Presson stated that the temporary treatment in no way harms the water for drinking or other domestic purposes.

On the suggestion of State Sanitary Engineer Gowdy, changes have been made in the positions in the Olive street reservoir at which water is delivered. The purpose of these changes is to better the circulation of the water of the reservoir. The engineer stated that a better quality of water is maintained in any reservoir when this detail of circulation is given special attention, as has been done here.

Court Notes

Bond Issue Sold
The $5000 school bond issue recently voted by Cypress district was sold by the county supervisors yesterday to the First National bank, of Anaheim, which offered a premium of $161. One other bid, offering a premium of $39, was submitted by the Blythe-Witter company.

Petition Is Filed
L. M. Hart, of Los Angeles county, has filed a petition in superior court for letters of administration over the estate of his father-in-law, the late W. L. Rhodes, of La Habra, who died July 27. The estate consists of real estate, stock in two banks in La Habra and other personal property making a total valuation of $400. The widow, Flora Rhodes, of La Habra, and two daughters, Jesse R. Hart, Los Angeles, and Flora Wilson, La Habra, are the legal heirs. Attorneys Laumer and Collins, Fullerton, represent the petitioner.

Wife Asks Divorce
Mrs. Bernice Alcore today asked for a divorce from Walter Alcore in a petition filed in superior court through Attorney Morris A. Cain, of Santa Ana. Non-support and extreme cruelty are charged. The couple married in Hanford in 1922. Mrs. Alcore asserts that her husband had a violent temper and was abusive in his treatment of her; also that he told her he loved another woman. His alleged cruelty finally forced her to leave him in April, 1925, she stated.

Will Close Highway
The county supervisors late yesterday granted a request that the Santa Ana canyon highway at Olive be closed to traffic on August 13 between 7 p. m. and midnight, a street dance being planned there at that time.

GOVERNOR WILL HEAD SPEAKING PROGRAM HERE

Announcement of the program for the banquet to be given in honor of Gov. Friend W. Richardson, who is scheduled to give an address at St. Ann's Inn Friday night was announced today by the Richardson Volunteer Newspaper Men's Committee of Orange County, which committee is sponsoring the governor's appearance here.

Besides the governor's own discussion of campaign issues and the promised accounting of his stewardship, various aspects of his administration will be discussed by the speakers, who will include T. B. Talbert, of Huntington Beach, chairman of the county board of supervisors; H. A. Lake, Garden Grove, chairman of the county harbor commission and fair board; C. C. Chapman, Fullerton; Dr. H. A. Johnston, of Anaheim; Attorney Stanley Reinhaus, Attorney A. W. Rutan, Santa Ana, and Mrs. W. L. Grubb, Santa Ana.

Talbert's subject will be "The State Highway Commission." Lake will discuss "The Santa Ana River and Boulder Dam." Dr. Johnston will discuss "State Institutions." Attorney Rutan's topic will be "Orange County Judgeships." Mrs. Grubb will speak on "Education," and C. C. Chapman's subject will be "The Governor and Orange County."

Other citizens and officials of the county, who are appointees of Governor Richardson, will attend the banquet and meeting for the governor. They include Superior Judge E. J. Marks, H. G. Ames and former Judge F. C. Drumm, N. T. Edwards, member of the state highway commission; Leon Whit-sell, member of the state railroad commission; Dr. H. M. Robertson, homeopathic member of the state board of medical examiners; Willard Smith, supervisor from the fourth district; C. C. Chapman, member of the state immigration and housing commission, and Justus F. Craemer, member of the state fair board.

Dr. R. A. Cushman of Santa Ana, will preside over the meeting and will introduce the governor.

The Young Men's Republican Club of Orange County, which has a meeting scheduled in Huntington Beach on the same night that Governor Richardson speaks here, is expected to adjourn at 8:30 p. m. Officials and members of the club, it is announced, have been extended an invitation to attend the Richardson meeting.

Because the dining room at St. Ann's Inn, where the banquet will be held, is limited to 250 seats, early reservations are advised. The banquet will be served at 6:30 p. m. Those who cannot attend the banquet will be able to hear the speaking if they arrive by 8:30 p. m., it is announced. It is emphasized that the affair is public.

SEPT. 9 SET BY FAIR DIRECTORS AS P.-T. A. DAY

Mrs. Fay R. Spangler, president of the Santa Ana City federation of the California Congress of Parents and Teachers, announced today that the board of directors of the Orange County fair has set aside September 9 as "Parent-Teacher day" at the fair.

Under an agreement with the fair management, the city federation will share with the former in the gate receipts of the day, the proceeds to be used by the P.-T. A. for child welfare and relief work.

To that end, Mrs. Spangler has issued an appeal to the officers and members of every P.-T. A. organization in the county to make a special effort to visit the fair on that particular day. It also was added that admission tickets, 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children, now are available at the office of the Santa Ana City federation, president 422-424, Helibush building, Santa Ana, and also may be had from Mrs. Charles Schweinfest, 125 Janes street, Anaheim.

According to Mrs. Spangler, P.-T. A. day at the county fair constitutes one of the main agencies for raising funds to carry on relief work among undernourished, destitute and afflicted children in the city.

The various officers and president of locals forming the city federation will have charge of the afternoon program of "Parent-Teacher day."

In addition to Mrs. F. O. McCulloch, of Los Angeles, newly elected president of the California Congress of Parents and Teachers, a number of other prominent P.-T. A. workers, including state officers and district presidents, residing in Los Angeles, San Diego, Riverside and San Bernardino counties, will be on hand for the banquet in the evening. The banquet, Mrs. Spangler explained, is to be served by Women's club, of Garden Grove, at $1 a cover, and is open to the general public. The proceeds of this undertaking, after deducting actual expenses, will go to the welfare fund for undernourished and destitute children.

Dr. and Mrs. D. A. Harwood and their sons, Chadron and Donald, left today on a motor trip northward which will take them to Portland where they will visit friends. Among the other interesting excursions which they are planning to take while away is the Columbia River drive from Portland to Astoria. They expect to be at home again about August 30.

Dr. N. M. Hammond of 301 West First street, has returned from a trip to Manitou and Colorado Springs, Colo. Dr. Hammond also went to Berkeley, Calif., for a visit with her granddaughter, Miss Cecil Clark, who is assistant instructor in a new method of education in the primary grades. Dr. Hammond, who is eighty-five and proud of it, traveled alone, and agrees that it was a wonderful trip for a woman of that age to accomplish.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Johnson and James Nash, returned home today after a four weeks' stay at the Orange County camp grounds.

Mrs. Jonathan Moss of Turlock, Calif., who has been visiting Mrs. Frank O. Calkins of 807 Garfield street, left yesterday for Long Beach where she will visit her daughter before leaving for the north. Mrs. Moss, who was a resident of Santa Ana thirty years ago, is amazed at the changes which have taken place here since that time, and is delighted with the city.

Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Deck and children of Garfield street, left Monday on a two weeks' vacation. They have gone to Bishop, Calif.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Young of 1515 North Main street, and their sons, George and Maurice, have just returned from a week's outing at Strawberry Flats.

Mrs. Elsie Daley and children and Miss Norma Wingood made a trip to Twin Peaks, near Arrowhead, Sunday to visit W. G. Gould who has a drug store there.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Johnson, of 421 South Broadway, and their guest, Mrs. Ella Boden, of Osceola, Iowa, spent the day yesterday in Riverside visiting friends.

CHILD DRAMATIC CLUB ORGANIZED

Organization of the Playground Dramatics club was completed yesterday afternoon in the Francis E. Willard junior high school auditorium, according to Mrs. Cecil Willets, director of this phase of playground activities.

Mrs. Willets expressed herself well pleased with the initial enrollment, but suggested that there is room for more boys and girls in the club, since more than one production can be worked on at the same time.

Work was started immediately on a play and a rehearsal was called for tomorrow afternoon in the school auditorium. Any new members may join the club at that time, it was announced. In this connection, it was added, it is planned to extend the spirit of Santa Ana's playgrounds, interest children in plays evolving about character building and present such plays to the public entirely free of charge.

WHAT DOES AN X-RAY

examination mean to you? Is it worthy of your consideration if you are sick? Would you be willing to spend a few minutes today in order to determine exactly what is causing your trouble, if in doing so you are put to no expense and are under no obligation in any way? We are certain you would. Then if you are willing, act at once as it may save you a great deal of suffering later on. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

Health is the result of perfect co-ordination of all the organs of the body; however, if these parts are not co-ordinating one with another the result is sickness and disease. Are your kidneys, lungs, bowels, spleen, stomach pancreas, heart liver and bladder working as they should. If not, how can you expect to be well? Disorders, such as toxic poisoning, asthma, constipation, diabetes, indigestion, weak heart, biliousness, bladder trouble, lumbago, rheumatism, headache, nervousness and that tired, worn-out feeling which comes over you in the morning when you should be at your best are results of a weakened condition of some of the above organs. This weakness is directly due to a pressure on the nerves supplying functional energy to the affected parts. Without this nerve force or energy no part of the body will work as it should.

FREE!

X-Ray examination will show the exact location and extent of this pressure. That is why we use it in our work. We would no more think of adjusting a patient without an X-Ray picture than a carpenter would think of building a house without a rule. This is because we do not believe in guesswork when the health of our patients is at stake. If you are not well and wish to take advantage of our free offer

Men's Engagement Rings

The custom of giving engagement rings to men began with European royalty, and for many years was as strongly in vogue in England, Germany and other European countries as the diamond engagement ring for women is in this country today.

Men like rings. Even if a man already has a ring, he can always wear another. And a ring as a gift carries a more intimate personal touch than any other individual piece of jewelry.

Shades of Gold Harmonize, Forming Motif for Pretty Party

OLD of the earth and gold of the sun, orange and yellow, formed the colors used by Mrs. Carson Smith, 1115 West Washington avenue, yesterday afternoon at a bridge tea and shower given for Miss Ida Manter.

Charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Manter of Anaheim, who is soon to become the bride of Ivan Carey of Long Beach. Mrs. Smith was Miss Dorothy Carothers, Dorothy Carothers and is one of this summer's brides.

After an afternoon of bridge, scores were added and it was found that Miss Elizabeth Parslow held high score and Miss Ida Manter, second. Each received an attractive gift.

Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess who was assisted by her sister, Miss Margaret Carothers, and her roommate at Pomona college, Miss Vesta Newsom. Little Miss Virginia Lee Peterson, daughter of Mrs. Harry Peterson of Anaheim added a joyous touch to the afternoon by reciting a number of short poems. She finished her share of the entertainment by reciting an appropriate verse and leading the honoree to a gold ribbon, telling her that at the other end was the pot of gold. It was there that Miss Manter found the lovely gifts, brought to her by her many friends.

An interesting feature of the guest list was that it included many members of the Collegiate club which was made up of girls who had graduated from Pomona college. Guests were Mrs. W. W. Manter, Miss Helen Manter, Miss Hazel Manter, Mrs. Charles Carothers, Mrs. Harry Peterson and little daughter, Virginia Lee, of Anaheim, Mrs. Byron Barton of Anaheim, Miss Dorothy Sage of Chicago, Mrs. Josephine Chamberlain of La Habra, Mrs. Clifford Argue of Burbank, Mrs. Charlotte Elliot of Laguna Beach, Mrs. Willard Gregory of Walnut Park, Mrs. Ronald Walker of Montebello, Mrs. Hail Thomson of Covina, Miss Vesta Newsom of Garden Grove, Miss Ruth Pierce of Long Beach, Miss Frances Chauncey of Claremont, Miss Ola Blair of Tustin, Miss Nancy Marshall, Miss Elizabeth Parslow and Miss Dorothy Schell of Los Angeles, Miss Margaret Carothers, Miss Grace Smiley, Miss Helen Smiley, Miss Elizabeth Bruner, Miss Peggy King, Miss Della Franzen, Mrs. Charles Carothers Jr., Mrs. Ralph Raitt, Mrs. Jack Bascum, Mrs. F. F. Bonchart of Compton, and Mrs. H. N. Alleman.

PERSONALS

Dr. Robert C. Currie left today with friends for a short vacation at Catalina Island. Dr. Currie will be back in his office Monday, August 16th.

Mrs. C. W. McNaught of 701 West Fifth street had a very pleasant surprise visit from her brother, Geo. W. Dameron and the Misses Annette and Bessie Dameron of Imperial. Mr. Dameron and his daughters are in their way to Berkeley where Miss Annette will re-enter the university for a post graduate course in English. Mr. Dameron is one of the pioneer residents of Imperial Valley.

Miss Alberta Thompson of Dallas, Texas is a guest at the home of her sister, Mrs. T. R. Green, and Mr. Green, 2017 Greenleaf street. Saturday night Miss Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Green, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Hefflon, 1431 Orange Ave., attended a beach party at Santa Monica given in honor of Miss Thompson. Mr. and Mrs. Hefflon remained in Los Angeles for the week end.

Mrs. Ethel Sinker, 104 Orange avenue, who underwent an operation at the Santa Ana Valley hospital a week ago, is rapidly improving. She is not yet able to return to her home.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Mayhew and daughter, Dorothy, have returned from a sojourn in the northern part of the state.

"My Favorite Flower"

They whisper the sweetest story ever told.

They tell of love, devotion and tears.

They uplift the soul for "prayer is the soul's sincere desire unuttered or expressed."

The pansy looks into one's eyes and with its gift of love, cements sweet friendships, pardons with its silent gift of sympathy, and influences false friendships.

The golden poppy, as ocean breezes stir its depths, beckons one to our shores and smiles at one for the dreams come true in the realization of the bag of gold at the end of the rainbow!

But sweetest by far is the lily for it brings tidings of great joy to all mankind. It soothes the restless heart and tells the whole wide world the story of redemption.

The annunciation lily is my favorite.

—Rosa L. Boyd.

PERFECT ACCESSORIES PLAY IMPORTANT ROLE IN MAKING COSTUME ATTRACTIVE

Whether one is a real artist in dress or only a dilettante is revealed in the accessories you wear. It is a perfectly simple matter to choose a becoming frock, provided you have access to good shops. But to get exactly the right hat, pumps, hosiery, jewelry, and handbag for that becoming frock is another matter. It requires a subtlety not involved in the original purchase.

It is in the selection of accessories that the French woman shows her mastery of dress. She is apt to buy them first, the frock later. She will economize on the gown, in order that she may have the little extras her artistic taste demands. Biased by Thrift

On the other hand, the American woman allows her native thrift to bias her buying. She will pay any price for her gowns and hats, more than the French woman would dream of, because they seem most important to her.

Then, because she has not trained herself to appreciate the value of her hosiery, gloves, and shoes and does not always realize what they contribute to her ensemble, she may ruin the effect of her very extravagant purchases.

Always I advise women to choose gloves, shoes, bags, scarfs, parasols and boutonnieres as carefully as gowns. And if one has to buy with a close eye on the expenses, I advise economy in gowns rather than accessories.

For accessories can make a gown, but a gown, no matter how lovely becomes inartistic and ineffective when badly chosen hosiery and too ornate gloves keep company with it.

The scarf is the best friend of the woman of limited income, because it gives her such variety.

With a simple, well cut crepe or chiffon frock, charmingly individual effects may be worked out with different scarfs. Pictured today is a stunning one of chiffon with white background and red and black squares. It has a deep border of red satin that is a touch suggestive of the approaching of autumn.

This season's scarfs come in all colors and all color combinations, and in all sizes, the square and the rectangle being equally popular. They live up to the tailor or the sport frock, and in chiffon or pastel colored silks they can transform the evening or the dancing frock.

Defy Uniformity

In handbags, one's attention is called to the huge model photographed, which is of pigskin stitched to form decorative squares, and given a monogrammed flap. This one is a purple leather, but similar ones may be found in black, tan, bright red, bright blue, or green.

These bright colored bags, with a hat of the same color, give a note of interest to the street outfit that challenges the commonplace and defies uniformity. Bags that match the shoes, in alligator or snakeskin, are also popular.

And a word must be said about parasols. Last summer they were covered with flowers of all colors, but the note of flamboyance is gone, and this year the fashionable woman prefers the pastel shades in soft blues, tender green, and cyclamen pink. The handles are short and the frames on the Japanese style. The younger set carry them in preference to wearing hats.

Piano Pupils to Have New Teacher

Miss Georgiella Lay of Los Angeles, who is a pianist of note, will take the place of Miss Arline Birchard, well known Santa Ana music teacher, who has returned to Denver. Miss Lay has been very successful as a teacher as she has studied in Chicago, Boston and finally in Europe. At present she has classes in Los Angeles and Covina.

Former pupils of Miss Birchard wishing to continue their lessons with Miss Lay are requested to meet her Thursday afternoon, August 12, from 2 until 5 o'clock at the home of Mrs. G. A. Bradley, 320 South Main street.

WOMEN PLAY LEADING ROLE IN DRUSE LIFE

SQUEIDA, Djebel Druse, Aug. 11.—The Druse loves three things above all: his wife, his weapons and his horse.

The Druse morals are of exemplary purity. The slightest flirt on the part of the women is punishable by death. Never can the young Druse woman, who has been careful enough to allow her admiration and love for some young warrior bold to become too visible, hope to marry the choice of her heart.

The women play a great part in the preparation of a Druse military expedition. When the tribesmen mount their horses and sally forth to war, only their wives and the elderly women of the tribe have a right to range themselves along their passage and chant cries of encouragement.

The young girls must remain home. If the advancing cavalier, waving his scimitar or his rifle in honor of the cheering, singing women, is a veteran of many campaigns, the women cry: "You have known your valorous deeds."

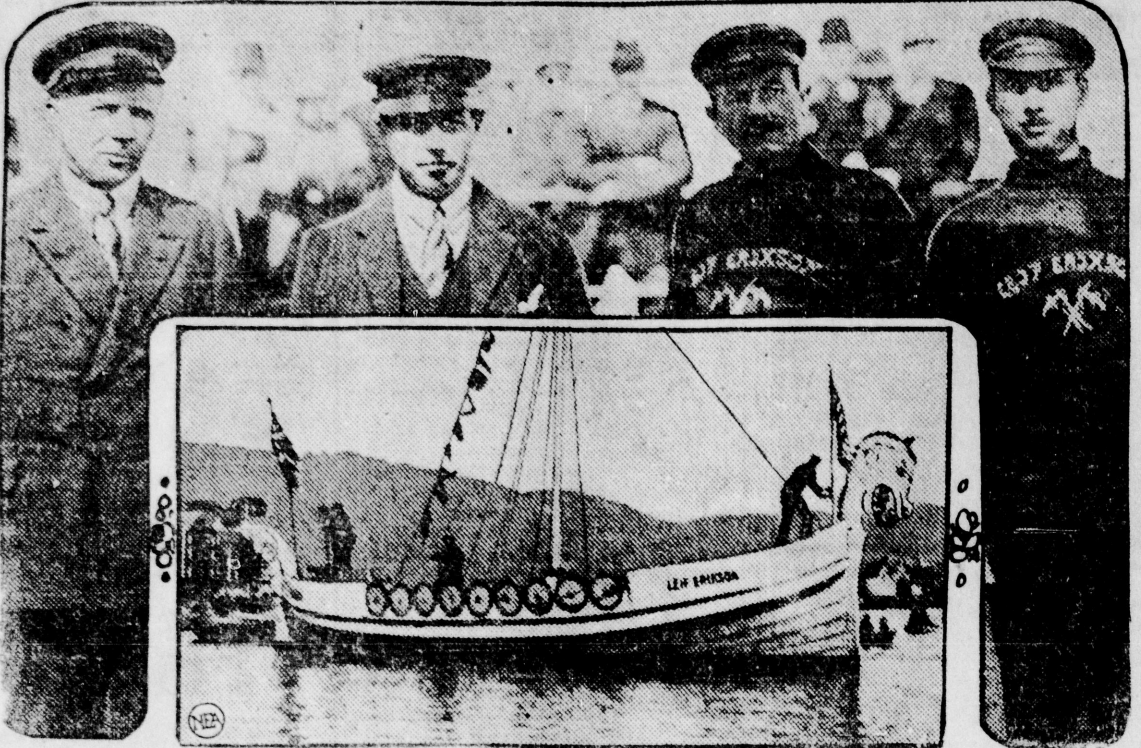

Should the passing horseman be going to war for the first time, however, they shout: "Be humble. We shall see you at work, then decide whether you are worthy of our cheers."

But it is in nursing the wounded back to health that the Druse women render the most valuable services to their warriors. Handed down to them from generations of warfare, their knowledge of surgery and medicine makes a practical trained nurse out of every mother and sister of the men in the field. They manufacture their own balm and drugs out of herbs and although not officially known as such, can boast of one of the best "Red Cross" in the world.

Prohibit Smoking In U. S. Forests

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 11.—Issuance of orders prohibiting smoking on large areas of the Modoc, Stanislaus and Tahoe National forests was announced here by District Forest service offices. Smoking in all parts of the Modoc and Stanislaus forests, except at camps and places of habitation, is prohibited until the fire hazard has abated.

VIKING VOYAGE TO AMERICA REPEATS SEA DRAMA ENACTED 900 YEARS AGO

SHORTRIDGE TALKS FOR BOULDER DAM

FRESNO, Aug. 11.—Samuel M. Shortridge, U. S. senator, who will seek re-election in the state primary election, August 31, addressed the Lions club here yesterday.

The senator spoke on the World court, Boulder canyon dam and forest preservation issues, declaring he favored each of them. "In giving our recognition to the World court, we took an important step toward prevention of any more wars into which this nation might be drawn," he said. "We are all interested in controlling the Colorado, which is the aim of the Boulder canyon dam project. It is a great plan, which would provide irrigation for vast areas and hydroelectric power for the southern coastal cities." Shortridge said, commenting on the matter of irrigation, which he declared to be of prime importance to the prosperity of these great valleys.

Norsemen Arrive at Boston After Voyage in Little Ship

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—Four modern vikings entered Boston harbor last night in a tiny ship modeled after that in which Leif Erikson crossed the rough Atlantic. In tow of a coast guard cutter, the viking ship Leif Erikson, Bergen, Norway to Philadelphia, was brought up to the army base in South Boston to take on water and supplies. The cutter had found the vessel becalmed early yesterday, 60 miles southeast of Cape Ann.

Capt. Gerhard Folgero, playing the role created by Erikson 900 years ago, said he and his crew of three men and a dog had been in distress, but had accepted to tow offered by the cutter Red Wing because water and food had run short. All were well, comfortable and in good spirits, the captain said.

The little sailing craft, 42 feet in length, was built at Bergen on the lines of Erikson's tenth-century vessel, and was designed for exhibition at the Sesqui-Centennial celebration in Philadelphia. She is of 13-foot beam, is six feet deep and is open-decked except for about 10 feet at each end, housed for sleeping quarters. In this cockleshell Captain Folgero and his men crossed the North Atlantic, following as closely as possible the route taken by Erikson.

From Bergen, the course was to Iceland, thence to Greenland, Labrador and Newfoundland. St. John's, Newfoundland was reached in 60 days. On August 3, the vessel reached Sandy Point, N. S., and six days ago Captain Folgero put out from St. John, N. B., for Boston.

Swedish Royalty Reaches Hawaii

HONOLULU, T. H., Aug. 11.—The Swedish royal party, Crown Prince Gustav Adolph and Princess Louise, arrived here yesterday, aboard the Shinyo Maru, welcomed by a 21-gun salute from the batteries at Fort Armstrong. As the royal party descended the gangplank a navy band played the Swedish national anthem.

LABOR SECRETARY ATTACKS CLERGY

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 11.—The Catholic clergy has been responsible for revolutions throughout the country. Adopting a new custom of meeting here during a debate on the religious struggle, in which he explained that the government had not attacked religion, but the priests. He said there was a connection between the clergy and international capitalists which had resulted in revolution.

Morones also attacked the action of the recent Knights of Columbus meeting in Philadelphia, in which cognizance was taken of the plight of the church in Mexico.

"Who governs Mexico, the Vatican or the revolutionary government?" Morones said.

"If the Vatican is permitted to ignore the government, we will have gone backward 100 years."

Morones' opponent in debate was a young lawyer named Luis Ller, who appeared for the League for Defense of Religion.

Freight Charges Keep Profits On Ruhr Coal Down

RIGA, Aug. 11.—The Moscow Communist university, for training propagandists for work in the neighboring states, has given degrees to 200 students. They include 48 Finns, 28 Jews, 55 Latvians, 16 Poles, 17 Estonians, 16 White Russians, 10 Germans and six Rumanians.

10 MILLIONS ASKED OF SCRIPPS ESTATE

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—John H. Perry, attorney representing Mrs. Josephine Scripps, of Miramar, Calif. announced here that he had filed a claim at Hamilton, O., against the estate of the late E. W. Scripps, founder of the Scripps-Howard newspapers.

The claim asserts that $10,107,334 is due the estate of the late James G. Scripps from that of his father. It is based on an alleged agreement made by the elder Scripps with the sons, James and John, now dead, by which they would receive 50 per cent of the profits and increments of the Scripps enterprises from 1908 when James became manager of the Scripps newspapers.

For two years after the alleged agreement was made, the divisions provided for were paid, it is stated, and then the father decided to discontinue them.

Perry alleges that, during James Scripps' management of the properties, they increased in value $25,000,000.

The E. W. Scripps estate, under the terms of the publisher's will, was left in trust, with Robert P. Scripps, a third and only surviving son, as executor.

It is no longer necessary to drain crankcase oil every 500 miles. Four changes of oil a year are enough, when you own a 1927 Buick.

The crankcase in the 1927 Buick is vacuum cleaned! A vital new improvement—the Vacuum Ventilator—draws all crankcase vapors out into the open before they have an opportunity to do harm.

Now, all that is necessary is to add oil occasionally, and then change it 4 times a year, simply as a supercaution.

40,000 BABIES BORN IN ITALY EVERY MONTH

LONDON, Aug. 11.—It is doubtful whether Italian babies have attracted quite the attention they should in the non-Italian world. They are naturally enough not particularly visible in Great Britain. If we have seen across one of them every now and then attached rather precariously to a perambulating organ that is probably the beginning and the end of the matter. But in Italy 40,000 or more such babies come into the world every month—say 500,000 a year. In due course they grow up and at the end of 20 years or so become Italian men and women seeking work and finding none, and to a lesser extent seeking places to live in and again finding none, says H. Wilson Harris in the London News.

Babies Are Problem
There are very few more urgent or more difficult problems in Europe than this. What is Italy going to do with this ever-increasing population?

What is to be done with them? They cannot stay in Italy, for while the actual area of the peninsula is considerable, the backbone of the country is all mountain, and though there may be room for further industrialization in the north, the greater part of Italy will remain agricultural and pastoral—and you cannot absorb 500,000 babies a year on the land.

If Italy's babies cannot stay in Italy they must go elsewhere. For that matter they always have gone elsewhere. Mainly, as everyone knows, they have gone to the United States; but today they can go to the United States no longer. The new immigration laws have cut down the annual total of Italian entrants from more than 300,000 to a figure so negligible as not to be worth taking into consideration at all.

Better In Latin America

In Latin America things are better. Italian laborers still flow in large numbers into Brazil and the Argentine Republic and other South American states, and in some regions the Italian tongue almost contends for supremacy with the Spanish. Italians, too, are going in numbers not entirely inconsiderable into Canada, but outlets of this kind are by no means what Italy really wants. She has no desire to see her sons betake themselves to another hemisphere, to live their lives under an alien flag and enrich by their toil an alien state. The question is how, if at all, Italians can live and work and prosper and still remain Italians.

That problem manifestly concerns other countries than Italy, for Italian expansion can take place only on soil that is not today Italian.

Lack of Colonies

If Italy possessed colonies of any consequence the case might be different; but her only colonies are Somaliland and Eritrea, in the Red Sea region, and the territory on the North African coast that used to be known as Tripoli and is today called Libya. In none of those are there great possibilities, even for a people as accustomed to hot climates as the southern Italians, and Italy (particularly an Italy fired by the imperialist ideas of Signor Mussolini) is openly casting her eyes about for something better.

But it is nearer home than Italy that the problem of Italian expansion is causing real disturbance of mind. The plain fact is that Italy is threatening to expand over France, or at any rate over French colonial territory. As a matter of fact, she is expanding actually into France already in the form of an extensive inflow of Italian labor into southeastern France.

Cross the Frontier

France has too few babies. What, therefore, could be more reasonable than that as Italian babies grow to working age and find too many men for the work in Italy they should simply cross the frontier into France, where there happens to be too much work for the men? Economically that is an excellent arrangement. Politically it is something very different from the French standpoint—particularly as much of the Italian settlement is taking place in regions that were Italian not so far outside the memory of living men.

Then there is Tunis, a French protectorate on the coast of Africa, almost exactly opposite Sicily and containing today 100,000 Italians, against 40,000 French. And the Italian in Tunis are steadily increasing, while the French are not. The Italian temperament being what it is, the methods of Mussolini being what they are, the situation assumes an urgency that is far too little appreciated outside Italy itself.

Child Handwork To Be Displayed

L. W. Archer, superintendent of the city summer playgrounds, announced today that samples of handwork done at the Franklin school playground center during the vacation period, under direction of Miss Edith Pavan, will be on exhibit in the show window of Lively's Sporting Goods store, 324 North Main street, today and tomorrow. The purpose of the exhibit, Archer explained, is to give the taxpayers, as well as members of the P. T. A., which organization contributed to the summer playground fund, an idea of the playground activities.

OXFORD, Eng., Aug. 11.—The heartbeats of a snapdragon were portrayed to an audience of scientists by Sir Jagadis Bose, Hindu savant, to illustrate his theory that plants have physical life similar to a human. His delicate instruments also pictured the "flowing" of the flower's "blood stream."

Political Announcement

HOWARD A. WASSUM

To the Voters of the Fifth Supervisorial District:—If elected supervisor of the Fifth district, I will represent the ENTIRE district. The interests of the county, as a whole, will receive my utmost consideration. The coast section should be looked after and its interests given as much consideration as any other part of the district. Newport harbor should be improved and bonds for that purpose should be voted. The San Juan Capistrano-Elsinore road should be built by the county. The County Fair should be supported as its success or failure reflects upon all districts alike. The Orange County park should be given every attention and should be improved as fast as funds are available. The park at Laguna Beach should be improved and other beach sections should be acquired for recreation purposes of the people of the county.

As Supervisor of the Fifth district from 1918 to 1922 inclusive, I caused to be built about eight miles of paved road, several miles of good gravel road, some new bridges and other county improvements but a public official does not deserve any special praise or credit for doing his duty. This is the purpose for which he is elected.

The County Free Library was instituted during my term and had my hearty support. The present method of handling highway construction was also instituted during that time.

I have made my home in Orange county for the last 25 years and I have a very thorough knowledge of the affairs of the county. I have always taken a very active interest in public affairs.

I represented the Tustin Chamber of Commerce in the Associated Chamber of Commerce for several years and served on the Good Roads committee of that body during the construction of our county paved road system. I am president of the Santa Ana-Tustin Mutual Citrus association and I am a member of the Orange County Harbor Chamber of Commerce, the Southern Seas Club of Balboa, besides other civic bodies.

I was a volunteer in the Spanish American War and the Philippine Insurrection, serving as sergeant of Battery A, California Heavy Artillery in the Philippines and have a Congressional Medal of Honor for that service. I also served as 1st Lieutenant of Company L, 7th Regiment, National Guard of California. I farmed twelve years on the Irvine ranch, six years on the O'Neill ranch near El Toro but, having disposed of my farming interests, am now engaged in raising oranges and walnuts in the Tustin district and am so situated as to be able to devote ALL my time, if necessary, to county affairs. Since the business of the county has grown by leaps and bounds, the county should have men on the Board of Supervisors who can and will devote ALL THEIR TIME, if necessary, to the county business.

A vote for H. A. Wassum is a vote for FAIR PLAY for the ENTIRE Fifth District.

H. A. WASSUM.

WARREN K. HILLIARD

Warren K. Hilliard today opened his campaign to succeed himself as county surveyor, subject to the primaries of August 21, with a political announcement which appears in other columns of this paper.

Hilliard attended the grammar school at Tustin and the Santa Ana high school. He was graduated in engineering from the University of California with the class of 1909. Since leaving college, he has been actively engaged in engineering work.

For three years, he was chief deputy in the Orange county surveyor's office and was occupying that office when he answered the call of his country and entered the World War. He served as an officer with the 27th engineers during the war.

Upon his return from France, Hilliard went back to the county surveyor's office and has been there continuously since 1919, five years in the capacity of county surveyor. In discussing the coming primaries, Hilliard said: "It is the policy of my office to give courteous and efficient service to everyone, without exception, and I am willing to have that service compared with that of any office in the county."

"I am heartily interested in every progressive movement for the good of the county. I am thoroughly familiar with the requirements of the office of county surveyor and ask the support of every voter who wishes that office conducted in a dignified, efficient and economical manner. I am willing to stand on my record before the voters of Orange county."

Cannery Refuse Spoils Beaches

BERLIN, Aug. 11.—The Potsdam aristocracy and its followers have been complaining to city authorities that the exclusive bathing beaches along the Havel river are being polluted by the dumpings of cannery factories and machine shops on the outskirts of the city. "The river," as one petition described it, "has become a sea of preserved edibles and oil."

SHEIKS CLAIM ANCESTRY OF SUN AND MOON

ALEPPO, Syria, Aug. 11.—Taous Malak, the "fallen angel," whom God expelled from heaven, is the patron saint of the sheiks—not those whose handsome profiles thrown against the American screen have made flappers hearts flutter. The tribe of the Yazidies, worshippers of Satan, from which the original sheiks sprang, are nomads living from cattle raising. They number about 12,000 and their habitat is north of Aleppo, near the Djebel Soumann. Another branch is to be found at Khaltar, a small town in the vicinity of Diarkehr.

Sheiks claim they can trace their ancestry from heaven, being direct descendants of Sheik Charaf-Eddin, or "the moon." Another early sheik was Amadin, which means "pillar supporting heaven," while a third one was directly related to the sun. Some of the present day sheiks claim to have the power of miracle in rendering inoffensive the bites of snakes and scorpions.

"Why do you worship the devil?" asked an American, who had been bitten by a poisonous insect, and, desirous of ascertaining the miraculous power of the sheiks, had sent for one.

"Satan is the source of all evil and if we ignore him we cannot avoid his wrath. God, on the contrary, is the essence of kindness and therefore we have nothing to fear from him," was the way the reply was translated.

There is no divorce among the real sheiks. The marriage ceremony is very simple. It is a question of mutual consent between the bride and the bridegroom, expressed before one of the older sheiks. Both

Handkerchief of Napoleon's Sold For 30 Dollars

PARIS, Aug. 11.—Handkerchiefs can be bought for almost any sum from three cents up, but it remained for a handkerchief of Napoleon's to set the record in price. The square of cambric was auctioned off for approximately 30 dollars. It was brought from St. Helena after the death of the emperor and has been handed down from one generation to another in the same family.

newlyweds are then branded with red ink on the shoulders and forehead.

The sheik performing the ceremony then takes a branch of a tree and breaking it in two, says: "Remain united until death parts you as force has broken this branch."

KING LIKES TRAVEL AS PRIVATE CITIZEN

BUCHAREST, Aug. 11.—Should the king of Rumania go to the United States, he should like to travel as a private citizen. Constant public receptions, in this royal view, "wear one out."

"I would want to give the American government the least trouble possible," King Ferdinand said, commenting on the uncertain possibility that he might join Queen Marie on her proposed fall trip to the United States.

"Receptions are trying for the persons who arrange them and trying for those in whose honor they are given."

"One day's official reception in the United States would be quite enough, I think. The remainder of the time I should like to travel as a private citizen."

Paris Fifth Ward Inhabitants Pray Five Times Day

PARIS, Aug. 11.—Five times a day, six on Friday (the Muslim Sunday) between dawn and sunset the inhabitants of the fifth ward of Paris, which contains the newly inaugurated Mohammedan mosque, hear themselves called upon to pray.

A muezzin has been appointed to sound the call. A famous Algerian tenor, Maudin, acted as amateur muezzin the day the mosque was inaugurated by the sultan of Morocco and from each corner of the square minaret, gay with turquoise blue faience, called forth "Allah il Allah" to the four quarters of the horizon in silver tones.

Just Like a Man

"My husband suffered for several years with stomach trouble. He often had colic attacks that put him to bed. But a man can't stand the pains that a woman can. He thought he was going to die and the doctors didn't seem to help him any. Like a drowning man grasping for a straw he tried MAYR'S, which a nurse told us about, and now he is entirely well and eats anything." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. At all druggists.—Adv.

AUTO CAMP IN SANTA ANA IS CALLED BEST IN SOUTHLAND

Tourists Are Pleased with Comforts Afforded Them
On Main Street Grounds

PARK IS OWNED BY CHAMBER COMMERCE

Large Kitchen and Library Are Features That Make Traveling Less Difficult

That Santa Ana has one of the best auto camp parks in Southern California is the testimony of many of the camp guests. Each night many motorists are turned away because the cabins are full. Those who provide their own tents, however, are not turned away, for there are five acres on which camps may be pitched.

Located on North Main street, the Santa Ana tourist park is ideally situated. North Main street being the thoroughfare upon which practically all of the incoming traffic from the north and west is found, the grounds are easy to find.
The chamber of commerce owns the camp. The six cabins were furnished by various clubs in the city, two by the Kiwanis, one by the Rotary, one by the auto club, one by the B. P. O. E. and one by the Lions. Each cabin contains two comfortable beds, table and bench, with electric light. Boarded half way to the top, a screen affords plenty of light and air.

A few years ago it was thought that only persons who could not afford to travel any other way, stopped at auto camps. But today more persons of means are found in the camps than ever before. Cars of all types, sizes and prices are found in the camp, and parties of all sizes, from the young chap going it alone to the family with nine children, occupy cabins or tents.

Kitchen for Campers
In addition to the cabins provided for the comfort of guests, is a large kitchen, furnished with 24 gas stoves, big sinks and tables and benches to seat 48 persons. Campers are requested to do their cooking in the kitchen, but by securing a permit they may cook over a camp fire. Such a permit does not even demand that they clean up afterward and burn the papers.
The caretaker attends to all such work. Comfortable and modern rest rooms with tubs and showers, are provided.

Last summer a small traveling circus made the camp its headquarters. Even the menagerie, including everything from monkeys to a trained rooster, enjoyed the outing.
A farmer from Missouri, who was touring with his family, was getting a bit homesick and anxious to start the return journey. The night the circus arrived at camp, the farmer was asleep and did not know anything about its arrival. Early the next morning the man was awakened by the educated rooster, giving forth his famous rising call.
The farmer, in turn, awakened his wife and said:

"Ma, did you hear that? We're leaving for home today. That's the best music I've heard since we left Missouri."

Last month 976 persons stopped

THEY'RE ALL EAGER TO SECURE ADMISSION
TICKETS TO ORANGE COUNTY'S 1926 FAIR

Upper—Mabel Larrick, of the Santa Ana Business and Professional Women's club, and Miss Margaret Gaebbe made an inspection of the Orange county fair grounds today and found this sign, which gives the dates for the show this year. They were among the first to secure tickets to be sold.

Lower, left to right—Margaret Gaebbe, Santa Ana high school girl, purchasing one of the first tickets to the Orange county fair from Mrs. A. P. Nelson, president of the Orange County Federation of Women's Clubs, while H. A. Lake, president of the fair association, sees that she gets the money. The fair is to be September 6 to 11 on the new grounds on the state highway between Anaheim and Santa Ana.

Street Dance to Be Held In Olive

A community street dance will be held Friday, August 13, in Olive. Each year a community dance is staged here under the auspices of the merchants and fruit men.
A feature of this year's entertainment is the engagement of the KXN Syncopators, a seven piece orchestra, well-known to radio fans through its work at station KXN, Los Angeles. The committee in charge of this year's affair consists of Ben Cole, L. G. Holman, Alex Fletcher and L. C. Mc-Clelland. Dancing will commence at 8:30.

Response to Advance Sale Is Gratifying According to Officers

The advance ticket sale for the greater Orange County fair, September 6 to 11, inclusive, began today with what H. A. Lake, president, and J. R. Hunt, manager, describe as a loud "bang."
Tickets have been placed in the hands of a large number of Orange county persons, representing societies, clubs and civic organizations, and the response at the very outset was gratifying, officers said.
Several features have been included in the fair program this year which were not incorporated in last year's fair, notably the horse show, the pyrotechnical displays and several other attractions.

The Cypress Farm center is making elaborate preparations for participation in the agricultural exhibition, according to information received at the fair offices on the state highway, just opposite the county hospital, between Anaheim and Santa Ana.

C. Norland and D. C. Battis have been named to head the committee in charge of the arrangements for the exhibit. Cypress has carried off the sweepstakes prize among farm centers for several years past and intends to keep the record clean, Norland and Battis said.

Space in the industrial and feature tents is being taken rapidly, Hunt declared. There are a few choice locations remaining, however.

SUGAR PLANT AT DYER WILL OPEN SUNDAY

Factory Will Handle About 60,000 Tons Beets This Year, Officials Declare

The Santa Ana Sugar company plant at Dyer will open for its annual run Sunday, according to announcement today by R. M.
Daniels, superintendent. First deliveries of beets started this week, but, according to factory employees, approximately 1800 tons of beets must be on hand before the plant can begin operations.

The factory at Dyer is the only beet sugar factory to operate this year south of Los Angeles. One other plant, that in Oxnard, is operating in Southern California.

The factory will handle approximately 60,000 tons of beets during the coming year, according to reports, and should pay to beet growers in the district nearly $600,000. Conservative estimates made this week by R. H. Tallman, agricultural superintendent of the company, show that the company will receive beets from approximately 5269 acres controlled by the company and from about 6400 acres of land controlled by the Los Alamitos Sugar company. The Los Alamitos plant will not operate this year.

Estimates of the agricultural superintendent show that approximately 30,000 tons of beets should be received from the Santa Ana Sugar company acreage, which draws from San Bernardino, the Hellman and Bixby ranches, near Los Alamitos, and from the Irvine ranch. The acreage of the Los Alamitos sugar company also should supply about 30,000 tons of beets, according to Tallman.

The plant has been equipped with a new sulphur station for the purification of the juice before it is made into sugar, according to information from T. Lilly, chief clerk at the plant. Approximately 250 men will be employed at the plant and work will continue for about 90 days.

Last year there were 51,886 tons of beets received at the sugar factory. The sugar content of the beets averages about 19 per cent.
Growers receive between $9 and $10 per ton for the beets.

Last year's prices for sugar and for beets were the lowest paid in the history of the beet sugar industry in Orange county, according to company officials. The low prices are blamed on the influx of Cuban sugar.

A bulletin was issued to the beet growers, informing them of the fact that low tariff enjoyed by the Cuban producers makes it possible for them to ship sugar into the United States cheaper than producers here can manufacture it.

Prices for beets and for sugar will be low again this season, according to estimates of company officials.

FIELDS OF BATTLE
STILL YIELD DEAD

PARIS, Aug. 11.—Although it is nearly eight years since the end of the World War, American searchers in the old battle area are continually finding bodies of American soldiers who fell in battle and were buried hastily nearby. Searching has been going more or less regularly during the entire period since the armistice, but in recent months the Oise-Aisne, Meuse-Argonne and Somme sectors have been literally combed.

Two hundred and sixty-one bodies have been found, of which 175 have been positively identified.
The searching work has been done by three separate parties consisting of an American investigator and four or five laborers. The investigator works by map and terrain over ground where certain regiments and battalions fought and from which men still are carried as missing.

The growth of vegetation has made the work difficult, as grass and bush have grown over temporary burial places and, in fact, changed the entire appearance of the land.

Recently the bodies of seven marines were found in the Oise-Aisne sector buried together, this being one of the largest "finds" in many months. Usually only single bodies are recovered.

British Organize
To Uge Lure of Isles on Tourist

LONDON, Aug. 11.—British merchants do not like the fact that far more American money is spent by tourists in France than in the British Isles. Hotels, shopkeepers, ship owners and several organizations are forming a co-operative body to attract visitors.

They have adopted the slogan,
"Come to Great Britain."

They assert that Great Britain is behind in letting the world know that it has as much to offer as a holiday resort as the Continent.
They propose not only to tell the world, particularly the United States and the British dominions, about the British Isles, but to help the tourists in every way to enjoy their visits. They also will encourage reciprocal visits of Britishers to the United States.

ALLEGED SLAYER POSES FOR

Charged with one of the most brutal murders ever recorded in Orange county, the Rev. Philip A. Goodwin, priest and actor, at the right, was returned to Santa Ana yesterday afternoon from New York, where he was arrested. On the left is Orla Moncrief, jailer, who brought the prisoner to Santa Ana.

FAIR DISPLAYS DISCUSSED AT ANAHEIM MEET

Persons who intend to enter feature exhibits at the greater Orange County fair, September 6 to 11, inclusive, today had a better idea of the plans to be followed in arranging their entries, following a meeting, last night, in the Anaheim high school presided over by George T. Kellogg, of Yorba Linda, chairman of the feature exhibit division.

The meeting was attended by many persons intending to enter feature exhibits.

Kellogg suggested that the booths symbolize some chapter in American history, preferably of the Colonial period, in keeping with the Colonial motif adopted for the fair. A number of ideas for attractive booths were discussed and approved and an enthusiastic spirit toward the fair was displayed by those present.

H. A. Lake, of Garden Grove, president of the fair board, made a short talk, in which he outlined some of the added attractions of the fair program this year. The advantageous location of the grounds, on the state highway between Anaheim and Santa Ana, is expected to contribute largely to the attendance this year, he said, and the fair management is bending every effort to provide a fair in keeping with the high standard of other outdoor Orange county attractions.

ENGLISH SPIRITUAL REVIVAL PREDICTED

LONDON, Aug. 11.—England is on the eve of a great spiritual revival, in the opinion of the Bishop of Salisbury, who spoke at a recent meeting of the church assembly.

He said a remarkable movement had been started among young men at Oxford, Cambridge and other universities to present the fourth report of the missionary council throughout the country. A campaign by 133 students was being conducted in four dioceses and in September 138 students will conduct another campaign.

"It is certain," continued the bishop, "there already are signs that the living power of God is working among us. I see it in the progress of revision of the prayer book. I could see it in the wonderful spirit that passed all over the country when the general strike was called off and in all ways the spirit of God is present and we have a revival coming."

Anniversaries of War Are Ignored

PARIS, Aug. 11.—One of the things which struck foreigners visiting Paris during the last week in July and the first in August was the complete lack of any reminders of the anniversaries of mobilization or the outbreak of the war in 1914.
There were few ceremonies and no newspaper articles to revive memories of those fateful days.

The Socialists held ceremonies in memory of the murder of their leader, Jaures, on the eve of the war.

The Communists celebrated the 12th anniversary of what they called the "world's greatest butchery"

by a children's fete at Saint Cloud woods. Here hundreds of children paraded, each wearing a red cap ornamented with an embroidered hammer and sickle.

Mussolini Again
May Be Teacher

PERIGIA, Italy, Aug. 11.—Students at the summer courses for foreigners at the Royal university here probably will have the opportunity of seeing Premier Mussolini in his old role of school teacher.
The premier has informed the rector of the university that he may give a lecture on "Ancient Rome as a Seafaring Power."

SOLO NUMBERS WILL FEATURE
BAND CONCERT

A varied musical program presented in the excellent style of the Santa Ana municipal band will be presented in Birch park Thursday night, according to announcement today by D. C. Cianfoni, director.
Robert Brown, popular Santa Ana baritone soloist, will sing and instrumental solo numbers also will feature the concert.

The program will commence at 8 o'clock with one of Cianfoni's own compositions, "The Knights of the Round Table." The selection was dedicated by Cianfoni to the Santa Ana organization. The nocturne,
"The Monastery Bells," by L. Wely, will be played by the band with cathedral chimes obligato.

Director Cianfoni will play the brilliant concert polka, "My Hope."
The selection was composed by Liberati, one of the world's greatest cornetists.

Featuring the program will be
"The Second Hungarian Rhapsody," by Franz Liszt, famous pianist and composer. The closing number on the program will be a selection from "Martha."

According to Cianfoni, attendance at the band concerts steadily is increasing and people of Santa Ana are expressing their appreciation of the concerts.

Crippled When Child, Is Now
Great Runner

BERLIN, Aug. 11.—Suffering from inflammation of the hip joints when seven years old, so that physicians feared he might never again walk unaided, Dr.
Otto Pelzer of Stettin is being feted by scores of cities as the greatest amateur middle distance runner in the world.

Dr. Pelzer at a recent track meet in Stamford Bridge, London, lowered by six-tenths of a second the world's record for the half-mile set by J. E. Meredith of the university of Pennsylvania at Cambridge, Mass., May 27, 1916.
The Stettin high school teacher negotiated the distance in 1:51.6.
He holds all German records from 400 to 1500 meters.

The doctor was born March 8, 1900. He credits his mother with his first world's record, because, he said, she urged him to run in London despite a bad cold.

"He was the weakling of the family," Mrs. Pelzer said. "Until he was 11 years old, physicians refused to allow him to attend school, and he was educated by a tutor. At seven, he lay in bed for months with inflammation of the hips. We thought he'd never be able to walk again. Participation in athletics in high school restored his health, but it was not until he was 14 that he ran his first race."

Buried Treasure Sought by British

LONDON, Aug. 11 — "Pieces of eight" worth $35,000,000 supposed to have been buried by pirates on Cocos island, in the Pacific, are the object of a treasure hunt by a British firm. This was revealed in a marine engineer's suit against the treasure island expedition to collect $25 for professional advice as to the refrigeration of the ship Midway. The engineer's attorney said the quest was financed by the "ever green British public," which was promised 5000 per cent return on their investment.

GOODWIN TO BE TAKEN BEFORE BANKERS FOR IDENTIFICATION

Attempt to Prove Priest Cashed Several Checks
On Patterson's Account

ALLEGED SLAYER
IN JOVIAL MOOD

Accused Man Says Actions Of Utah Cowboy, Before
They Parted, Suspicious

In an attempt to identify Philip
A. Goodwin, actor-priest, charged with the murder of Joseph J. Patterson, Los Angeles bond broker, as "Sam Reeder," a man who cashed several checks in Los Angeles banks on Patterson's account, some of which were said to have been cashed after the death of the man whose body was found in the Santa Ana canyon on March 22, the suspect early today was taken to Los Angeles to face several bank officials.

According to information released from the sheriff's office, checks to the amount of more than $100 were cashed on Patterson's account. The checks were signed "J. J. Patterson" and indorsed by "Sam Reeder."
According to R. B. Patterson, brother of the slain man, the signature of Patterson was not that of his brother. This was said to have been borne out by a handwriting expert, to whom the cancelled checks were taken.

Will Face Bishop
Goodwin also will be taken before his former landlord in Los Angeles for identification purposes and before Bishop Gregory Lines, head of the American Catholic church in Los Angeles for the same purpose. Lines is said to have ordained Goodwin a pastor in his church some time before the murder of Patterson.

With Goodwin returned here from New York, where he was arrested in the National Vaudeville Actor's club for the murder of Patterson, Sheriff Sam Jernigan and District Attorney A. P. Nelson today were gathering up the threads of circumstantial evidence with which they expect to convict the dapper little priest.

Patterson's body was found, badly mutilated, in a field off the Santa Ana canyon road, on March 22, by a Mexican laborer. The man had been dead several days when the body was found. Officials of the district attorney's office are of the opinion that the man was strangled to death and that some inflammable material was poured over the body and ignited in an effort to destroy all traces of the crime.

Goodwin is known to have been friendly with Patterson and a Utah cowboy, Albert Gaines, alias Abe Dewey. Gaines now is the object of a nation-wide search being made by Sam Jernigan, who also has a warrant for him, charging murder.

Gaines' Action Suspicious?
When Goodwin arrived here yesterday, he intimated that he would attempt to prove that the actions of Gaines was suspicious soon after the date of the murder. He said that he, Goodwin, went to New York and that he had heard from the cowboy only once since the two parted at the boarding house in Los Angeles and at that time
Gaines was within 40 miles of his

MARRIAGE BARK WEATHERS SEA OF OBJECTIONS

Married twice in two weeks.
Mr. and Mrs. Robert Paris Green, of this city, obtained a marriage license in Riverside Monday.

It was their second visit to the office, both times with the same object.

When they received their first license last week, Green gave his age as 22 years and Mrs. Green, then Jeanette May Wright, declared she was 18.

They returned to Santa Ana, where, it seems, the matrimonial bark was subjected to stormy weather in the form of parental objection. The young couple evidently had forgotten to inform their parents of the prospective marriage. Declaring the young persons were under age, the fathers of both parties called at the office of the district attorney in Riverside Monday to determine what should be done about it.

After a consultation with District Attorney Redwine, they decided that there would be no objection in instituting annulment proceedings. They felt, however, that the correct ages of the newlyweds should appear in the county records, so a short time later, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Paris Green, armed with certificates of parental consent, applied for another license, giving their ages as 20 years and 18 years, respectively.

Lou Tellegen and Alma Rubens in "East Lynne" at West Coast Walker theater tonight.

WEST COAST-WALKER
Headlining the five-act vaudeville bill at the West Coast-Walker theater today and tomorrow is Ed Bowder and company, who present a sketch entitled "The Bandit." The members of this cast are all experienced artists, having been in the dramatic line of the show business for some time. The sketch is given in a thrilling manner and will hold the keen attention of all audiences, whether hard to please or not. It is an act you should not miss.

Macey and Madeline are in an act called "French Dressing," which is as spicy as the title. The Gladiators in "Roman Pastimes," offer a series of original and astounding feats of strength that, coupled with their artistic showmanship, are sure to provide several sensational thrills that will be appreciated by all who witness the performance of these two sterling athletes. Harold Alberto, "The Gay Deceiver," is all that and more—his routine includes many original sleight of hand tricks and his line of talk is both original and refreshing. Miss Luella Davis, a fashionably pretty miss, gifted with a beautiful voice, presents under the caption of "Songs of Yesterday and Today," a meritorious singing number. It is a splendid expression of song that will please and entertain most delightfully.

All the poignant charm and appeal of the play that has drawn laughter and tears from three generations of Americans has been caught in the screen version of "East Lynne" made for William Fox by Emmett Flynn. This pictureization of Mrs. Henry Wood's novel drama, for fifty years the greatest of all love stories, opens at the West Coast-Walker tonight.

With the aid of an excellent cast and the added scenic advantages of the motion picture, Mr. Flynn has succeeded in making the screen production even more appealing than the original play.

He has reconstructed the beautiful English countryside as the background for this romance of other days. Lenore J. Coffey wrote the scenario.

The cast includes many notable screen players. Alma Rubens portrays the role of Lady Isabel with a wistful beauty that tugs at the heart-strings. Archibald Carlyle is played by Edmund Lowe with his usual skill. Lou Tellegen who appeared as Sarah Bernhardt's leading man on her last tour, makes his debut in "East Lynne" as a villain with unusual success. Frank Keenan has added another fine character to his gallery with his masterful interpretation of Judge Hare. Paul Panzer plays Mr. Halli-John.

ing, and a really remarkable horseman and an athlete. It looks as if the producer, Chas. R. Rogers, had made a real "find" in this new star. However, they have not relied only upon Maynard, but have surrounded him with a cast of well-known names, headed by the charming Dorothy Devore, who is co-starred. Such old favorites as Sheldon Lewis, Josef Swickard, J. P. McGowan, George Nichols, and the appealing child actor, Buck Black, make up a strong list of players.

An emphatic good word must be said for the direction, which was in the capable hands of Albert Rogell, whose work we have noted.

YOST SPURGEON THEATER

"Grass," Paramount's production which is playing at Yost Spurgeon theater, was called 90 per cent perfect by the critic of "Movie Weekly," one of the fan publications. The review is printed below:

"Grass" is the perfect production! And lest anyone mistake our meaning, we hasten to say that the 'Grass' we refer to is the much-heralded screen drama which was filmed in Persia by Merian C. Cooper, Marguerite Harrison and Ernest B. Schoedsack.

"Grass" has no actors to tread the boards but if 'all the world's a stage' we can testify that no more poignant play is staged anywhere in the world than in that part of Persia. There the Baktyari tribes, referred to in the picture as 'The Forgotten People,' are forced twice a year to travel on foot, hundreds of miles to find grass for their herds. The summer grazing grounds and the winter pastures lie on either side of icy mountains, frozen whirlpools and precipices. When the seasons change, 50,000 people and 500,000 beasts must cross these obstacles to get—grass.

"The filming of this migration forms the story of 'Grass.' It is a terrifying, fascinating film, filled with grim tragedy and gentle humor. It is a story which will interest the whole world. Don't miss it!"

Powder Puffs Not For Farmer Girls

MOLD, Flintshire, Wales, Aug. 11.—"What's the use of talking about 'back to the land' in this age when boys love polished nails and girls must have powder-puffs?"

Mrs. J. Evans of Mannerch, demanded in a speech before the Flintshire Liberals in opposition to the Lloyd George land scheme.

But in spite of the bitter opposition offered by Mrs. Evans and a group of her loyal supporters the Flintshire Liberals endorsed the Liberal land plan.

Since the West's first Automobile
—Union Gasoline Has Been the Motor's Friend

BACK in 1899, the first crude automobile made its appearance on the Pacific Coast. People gasped in wonder at the sight of it, and a few daring ones actually trusted themselves to the dangers of the "horseless carriage."

What strides have been made in the automobile industry since then! You can easily recall the topless, high-seated bicycle effects in the early models—the outside brakes and gear levers—the chain drive.

Then came the first improvement, a snappier looking car. And thus we graduated into more comfortable machines.

Step by step there developed the automobile of today.

In the years that have passed, since people stood astounded while the earliest products chugged down our main streets, hundreds of cars have been made—have existed for a year or two and then died out.

Time, that test of all things, has weeded out the many unable to "make the grade" and left the standard cars of today.

Like these automobiles, non-detonating

Union Gasoline has progressed. Has stood the test of years.

Just as constant thought and research have been directed toward improvements in automobiles, so has Union Oil Company of California constantly improved non-detonating Union Gasoline and the methods of refining this fuel.

And now when you buy a car you do not only consider the looks of the machine. You ask how long has it been manufactured, what is the record of its makers.

How has it stood the test of time!

So with gasoline.

In non-detonating Union Gasoline you get the perfection resulting from four decades of refining and marketing—of over forty years of research—all to serve you.

Consider these facts when you buy your gasoline. Consider that drivers of all kinds of automobiles, from the earliest model to the most modern, have operated on and been given satisfaction with non-detonating Union Gasoline.

That is your guarantee.

Union Oil Company of California

This is one of a series of announcements by the Union Oil Company which we believe will be of special interest to all Westerners. Others acquainting you with the development of the oil industry will appear from time to time. Look for them in this publication.

ROYAL ORATOR COMPOSES ALL HIS SPEECHES

LONDON, Aug. 11.—In taking the chair at the opening of the British association at Oxford and in making the presidential speech, the Prince of Wales is doing something that no Prince of Wales has yet done. The last member of the royal family to take the chair was Prince Albert, the husband of Queen Victoria. The speech has been a difficult one for the prince to prepare, as it must of necessity deal with modern science developments.

This, however, is not by any means the first time in which the Prince of Wales has had to speak on subjects of which he knows little. His practice in preparing such a speech is to get the material from experts on the subject. From the material so supplied he makes a rough draft of the speech. He dictates this draft to a shorthand writer. When the draft is completed at least two of the experts whom he has consulted are summoned to York House again, when the prince reads the draft to them in order to see that there are no technical errors.

The prince has had to be especially careful in the preparation of his speech to the British association, which will be delivered to scientists of world-wide reputation and will be broadcast throughout the world. The prince actually read the draft of his speech three times before he was advised that the technical matter it contained was correct.

When the draft of a speech of this kind is completed, the prince writes in pencil the whole of the speech he intends to deliver and learns it by heart, for he rarely delivers a speech from notes. When he is what may be called "part" perfect in the speech, he rehearses it in the presence of a few members of the household and the speech is then ready for delivery.

It may be mentioned that the Prince of Wales has not since the end of the war allowed any one to write his speeches for him. In this practice he follows the example of his father who has always composed his own speeches, although King Edward invariably left the composition of his speeches to others. In his earlier days, the Prince of Wales was beset with an extraordinary nervousness which marred his speeches and sometimes rendered them almost unintelligible to his audience.

Now he has quite conquered this nervousness and, barring the fact

Average Skilled German Workman Gets $9.56 Week

BERLIN, Aug. 11.—The average skilled workman in the 15 leading German industries is paid the equivalent of $9.56 a week of 43 hours, the ministry of industry and commerce reports. From this wage, the employers deduct for the federal government an income tax averaging nine per cent for single persons and eight per cent for married.

The Organized Building Trades Workers, the plutocrats of German labor, draw $13.15 a week. Miners rank second, with $11.70. The average weekly pay of unskilled male workers is $7.75. The cost of living, as shown by official reports, is almost as high as that outside of metropolitan districts in the United States.

Strikes are few because jobs are scarce. Forty-eight adults out of every 1000 men, women and children are jobless in Berlin.

'Yakalo' Is New Type of Animal

WAINWRIGHT, Alberta, Aug. 11.—The new breed of live stock called "Yakalos" is being developed in the national park at Wainwright by crossing buffalos with yaks.

"Yakalos" combine the meat-producing qualities of the yak with the foregoing characteristics of the buffalo," said G. B. Rothwell, director of the animal husbandry division of the Department of Agriculture.

The new animals breed true to type, he said, and have proved more adaptable than "cattalo," evolved several years ago by crossing buffalo with domestic cattle.

that occasionally he allows his voice to drop rather too low, his speeches are easy for his audience to follow, and there is a melodiousness in his voice that makes him pleasant to listen to.

There are two speeches which the prince regards as the most difficult he has made. One was made shortly after his eighth birthday at a lunch party given in his honor by a lady who was a friend of Queen Mary, then Duchess of York. The lady had given a silver sword to the prince and, according to his father's direction, he had to express his thanks formally for the gift at the conclusion of the lunch. The prince stood upon a chair and with considerable dignity and in a clear voice said, "I thank you very greatly for giving me such a beautiful sword. I shall always keep it and shall always remember this pleasant party."

AUTO CAMP IN SANTA ANA IS COMMENDED

from other states were registered, and this month promises an even larger registration. July and August are, as a rule, the busiest months. As soon as school vacations start in the summer, the tourist season opens and the west seems to be the mecca of nearly everyone with an automobile—the easterners come west and the westerners come further west.

Bring Pets Along
In June, a party, including man, wife and three children, one bear cub and two monkeys, registered. "Bruh" was chained to one of the trees on the bank of the river and the monkeys' cage swung under another. So far no kind of pet has been refused entrance to the camp. Dogs and cats and birds are every day camp entries. And from observation, the pets enjoy the camp life and touring as much as their owners do.

To prove the old adage that it takes all kinds of people to make a world, one has only to spend a day in the auto camp. The different things each person begins to do upon arriving is interesting. One woman, who could hardly squeeze through the car door, immediately began to crawl out and dig into the pocket of the car, from which she drew forth a large, plush book and fountain pen. One would think that she was hurrying to write in her diary about the last day's trip, but, instead, she hurried up to the tent next to where her party had stopped and asked if the occupants there would mind writing their names and addresses, with some "cute" remark—explaining that when she got home she was going to write a book. Others want to bathe first, some women sit under the trees and crochet, never forgetting the count of the stitches from one camp to another. One woman was crocheting a bed spread with the name of each town where she had camped in one of the squares.

Some want to read, or write to the "folks back home," and for them there is a comfortable library. The building is octagonal, with seats built all the way around the walls. Tables and benches are found in the room, while on the south side is a huge fireplace, where tourists can enjoy a real wood fire on cool or rainy nights as they sit around and talk with their fellow campers, comparing roads, experiences and home towns.

Women of 3000 Years Ago Had Bobbed Tresses

JERUSALEM, Aug. 11.—That bobbed hair existed 3000 years ago and was the preferred style of hair-dress among the women of certain early races is the belief of Dr. William Bode, professor of Old Testament and Semitic literature in the University of California.

Professor Bode's evidence is a marble head of Astarte, the "Queen of Heaven," mentioned in the Bible, which he found among the ruins of Mizpah.

The hair of this sacred stone woman is luxuriant, is lopped short at the neck, plastered down on the cranium and is carefully parted in the middle.

GOODWIN TO BE TAKEN BEFORE L. A. BANKERS

home town of Ogden, Utah. Goodwin claims that Gaines disappeared mysteriously after the parting in Los Angeles. He claimed Gaines' mother, who also has been attempting to locate her son, has failed in her efforts. "It looks suspicious," the actor-priest said.

Officers today were checking on a letter received by Goodwin's and Patterson's landlord, in Los Angeles, which bore an alleged fake signature of Patterson and which told the landlord that he, Patterson, was in San Diego and Tia Juana and that he probably would be gone for some time, "so don't worry about me."

The letter was postmarked after the time set by officials as the date on which Patterson was killed and is believed to have been written in an attempt to allay any fears that something had happened to Patterson. The signature was said to be a fake by R. B. Patterson, brother of the slain man.

Admitted Having Bonds
Orla Moncrief, county jailer, who brought Goodwin to Orange county from New York City, reported to Sheriff Jernigan, that Goodwin had admitted to him, enroute, that he, Goodwin, had obtained $1500 worth of oil bonds that formerly belonged to Patterson and which officers have been seeking. The priest is said to have admitted that Gaines gave him the bonds to finance a show he expected to stage in New York City and that he sold the bonds at a profit of $400.

That the bonds may have been the motive for the murder of Patterson is being investigated by the sheriff's office.

Goodwin continues to stay in the jovial mood he was in when he entered the jail yesterday afternoon. When he was booked on the murder charge and asked his occupation, he said:

"Priest, preacher, clergyman or whatever you want to call it."

When he was searched, among the articles found on him was a deck of playing cards. He also wore an American Legion button and said he was a member of post No. 129, Los Angeles.

When arrested in New York, the priest had a pair of dice in his pocket and was wearing a masonic pin, officers there reported.

Communicate With Brother
Officers will communicate today with R. B. Patterson, the brother, and have him come to Santa Ana to identify, if possible, an old ring found on Goodwin's person in New York. The ring is said to be like one worn by the dead man just prior to his murder.

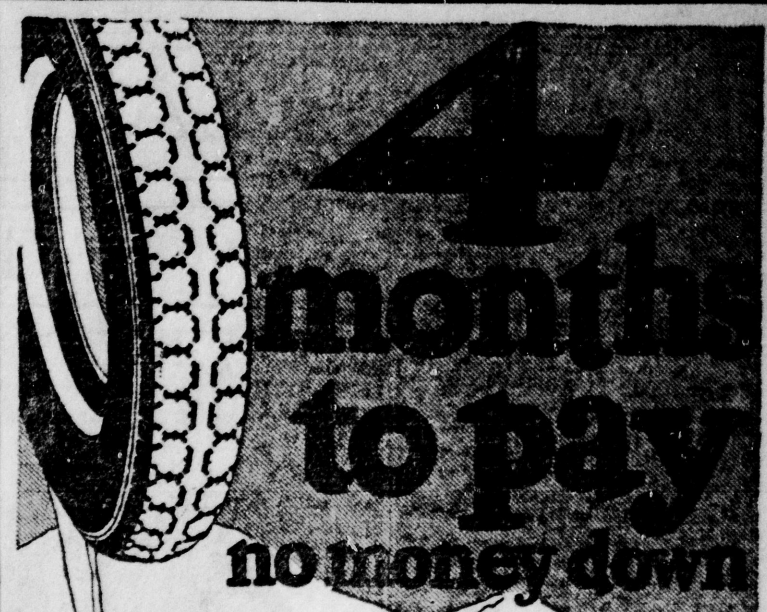

On arrival here yesterday, Goodwin was willing to talk to reporters about everything but his own case. "I have nothing to say regarding the murder at present and won't have until I have seen an attorney," he said. He was willing to pose for his picture, however, and remarked that he didn't see any reason why Almee Semple McPherson, Dr. J. Frank Norris, El Paso preacher, and other preachers should get all the publicity.

Goodwin was taken before Justice Kenneth Morrison yesterday afternoon for arraignment. His preliminary examination was set for 9 o'clock next Tuesday morning, and the prisoner was ordered held without bail. Throughout the proceedings Goodwin was deeply interested and asked several questions. He said that he had not secured an attorney but that he would have one before next Tuesday.

Goodwin was arrested in the National Vaudeville Actors' club, New York City, within 12 minutes after New York police received a telegram from Sam Jernigan, sheriff, to arrest Goodwin on the murder charge, it was learned when Moncrief returned here.

The actor's club is just a block and a half from the police station and an officer was dispatched to the place immediately. He found Goodwin in the lobby of the building.

POE'S STORIES: The Black Cat

With the discovery that the cat had but one eye, like Pluto, a feeling of aversion came over the master. The cat, itself, showed an opposite feeling, clinging to the master's footsteps, crouching beneath his chair, leaping upon his knees, clambering upon his breast and running between his legs as he walked.

Whereas Pluto had been entirely black, the new cat had a white spot on its breast. This seemed to grow larger and more distinct.

In the diseased mind of the master, that white spot on the cat's breast, became the image of a gallows. Wretchedness made him its prey.

The feeling of remorse, reflected in the persistent image of the cat and the dreadful picture its white breast outlined, plunged the man into the depths of woe. He would awaken from fantastic dreams to find the cat at his side, its hot breath upon his face. Evil thoughts and frequent outbursts of uncontrollable fury seized him.

The WOMAN'S DAY

PARIS, Aug. 11.—Perfume is as important to the French maid and matron as her gown or wrap. There is at least one "parfumerie" for every shop of robes and mantoux.

And Milady on a shopping tour devotes as many hours to the proper matching of perfumes to costume and her personality as we Americans give to dress or shoe selection.

I learned all this when strolling along the famous Rue de La Paix with its shops gleam and aglow like the famous bazaars of Aladdin's day.

Before me was the sign of a perfume house which has long borne a name to conjure with "among us girls" at home. I paused before the shop from which exuded the fragrance of all the world.

We counted all our crinkly little francs, which are all dolled up like a Christmas tree with pretty pictures. Then we counted the five centimes and the ten centimes way on up to the 50 centimes which are almost a cent.

And we said, "their very smallest bottle at home is five dollars. But there would be no tax or anything like that here. Maybe if we went without lunch and—"

So we went in. The shop was very bare. Just creamy walls and two great Sevres jars. One full of fragrant violet perfume. The other sparkling with an ambre lotion.

Hardly had the door closed behind us than we saw come forth from her hair with her tottering heels, her ears all showing, her sunset red nails "n" everything.

And she said something which we did not understand. So we looked blank. Then the gorgeous creature led us by the hand into a little boudoir and she sat us down in chairs as soft as swans-down, chairs which reclined, and she cooed us into a sort of mesmeristic state, and clapped her hands soundly.

Now came two tiny boys, dressed like pages of old, into our shadowy fragrant bower. And the two boys bore great trays, one gold and one silver, and upon each tray were tiny vials of fragrance.

Madame now brought silken kerchiefs, one fad-colored, one violet, and still cooling and murmuring, she bound them over our eyes.

By this time, being a bit accustomed to the climatic conditions, we deduced from the French that we could "see" the perfume better if in utter darkness.

Then in swift succession began a passing of the little vials beneath our noses, wosies, whilst madame murmured the mystic names of emeraude, ambre, cerise, pechinarisse, jacquimot. But after the first dozen, our noses refused to work overtime.

Besides, just as one insists in this land on translating "france" into dimes and dollars, and "wee" into plain "yeses," so did we insist on translating our high-born perfumes into plain rose and violet and lily and carnation.

After we had sniffed of some 50 vials, madame removed the kerchiefs and waited for our royal decisions.

Timidly we pointed at a vial of rosy hue. Madame seized it. Looked at it and us. Launched into heated oratory which seemed to revolve about the point that such things were not for us. Madame surveyed us minutely, our hair, our eyes, our hands. Then dramatically pounced upon a bowl as yellow as the sun.

"Ah, this was ours, this coque d'or. This for the brown hair, the brown eyes, the hands of tranquility. Never, never, never must we douse our trail forms with ought else."

We accepted the edict and waited for the worst, asking "combien?" or "how much?"

Madame looked at us aghast, her eyes afire in the shadows of "the smelling room." Surely we were not through? This perfume was for the costumes we were wearing only. We must have perfumes for all our dresses. For our colored handkerchiefs. For our theater nights. For our morning walks.

FELLOWSHIP

I could chum it with the beggar, I could chum it with a crook, If his crooked work I wasn't asked to share, I could chum it with the padre, with his rosary and book, For I'm happy with my fellows everywhere.

But I cannot go the strutter with his smug and haughty look, And his arrogant and self-important air.

Oh, I care not what a man is or the task he's called to do, I'll befriend him if he's trying to be fair, If he says to me, "good morning," I'll say: "The same to you!" And I'll never see the garments he may wear.

But I cannot go the strutter who just looks you through and through With that "better for I'm richer" sort of air.

We're all in this world together headed downwards, soon or late, And the humblest may be angels over there.

And there's none of us so favored or so very truly great That the friendship of another he can spare.

So I cannot go the strutter who returns good will with hate And that arrogant and self-important air.

Careful Mothers Are Rare, Appreciate Them--Cynthia

By CYNTHIA GREY

In these days of emancipated youth, it is a rare thing to see a mother questioning the amusements of her daughter to such an extent as to confer with the chaperon of school parties.

But if we saw more of this kind of thing, there would be fewer sad little girls repenting at leisure the mistakes made in haste.

Anna Mary, writing me of her mother's strictness, has the usual attitude of youth toward its elders—that of bitter rebellion mixed with scorn.

"Why, Miss Grey," she writes, "I'm 17, and all the girls I go with are allowed to take care of themselves. My mother is so strict that the boys are almost afraid to ask me to go anywhere."

"I don't think it's fair for her to spoil my fun like that, do you? My senior hay ride will take place next week, and mother even insists on knowing who the chaperons are, and in talking to them herself."

"It's making me look silly to my friends and I won't stand it much longer."

After all, looking silly to one's friends isn't the worst thing in the world. If your mother can protect you from unpleasant experiences or from real danger, at the cost of some slight embarrassment to you, I should say "well done."

However, I cannot see why your mother's solicitude should make you "look silly." There is no reason why your friends should know about it at all, if you do not choose to tell them. There are always other reasons to give for refusing invitations.

If you have nothing to conceal, it cannot hurt you for your mother to talk with the woman who is to chaperon the hay ride. You may be sure that the chaperon will only have the higher regard for you and your family if your mother does do this.

I'm sorry to seem unsympathetic, Anna Mary, but I think you should be a very grateful little girl, instead of a rebellious one.

The kind of mother you have is the best safety insurance you know of.

'Noblesse Oblige' Still Lives in Democracy

Duty To Set An Example Extends to Every Walk Of Life.

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

"Noblesse oblige," that expression born centuries ago when the people of the earth looked to their overlords for protection, shelter and food, is still with us, though changed.

As time went on it grew to mean more than material dependence. The vassals and retainers did what their masters did, "Noblesse oblige" took on a more poignant meaning; it applied itself to manners and customs.

Those in power found themselves setting a moral standard for Europe.

As one writer expressed it, "The King can do no wrong," did not mean that the king might have a continuous holiday and holiday, but that the king, the constant example of his subjects, must be the perfect man.

The phrase has lost much of its old meaning as applied to class; it no longer associates itself with castles and courts. It has a more distinct and individual significance. It does, or should, influence vitally the actions of every one in the world, for each of us has some person to whom he is an ideal.

Too often we are unconscious, or unconcerned, about the example we set to others. If we do wrong, they feel justified in doing the same. If we do right, they are inspired to imitate.

Noblesse oblige! One generation owes it to another, parents owe it to children, teachers owe it to pupils, students to students, neighbors to neighbors, mothers to daughters, fathers to sons, and friends to friends.

A common conception of the phrase now is "Keeping up appearances." We must dress thus and so, or we must do this and that, because it is expected of us. "Noblesse oblige" means more than that. It does mean keeping up appearances, but in a bigger and better way.

ANSWERED LETTERS

Esther L. K.—Your scalp, and consequently, your hair will be benefited by daily massage, also use of the pilocarpine tonic, several times a week. Your friends' assurances on this score are correct, and many others who were turning grey premature have also had the color restored to their hair by using the tonic systematically. There are cases, however, where the trouble is not in the scalp, and while the massage and the tonic will increase the vitality in the hair, the loss of color must be traced to some condition in the system.

Y. W. E.—A red nose usually indicates digestive troubles or imperfect elimination. At this season of the year with plenty of spring vegetables and other green things to make into salads, there should be no reason why you should not rid yourself of the condition through a proper choice of food.

Water cress, dandelion leaves, and many other greens will purify the blood and stimulate the action of the digestive organs, so there is no chance for a red nose or any other skin blemishes of the same nature.

Merilee F.—You can purchase saccharine at any large grocery store as it is used so much in the place of sugar. It is much more economical for you to learn to enjoy the natural flavors of some foods instead of insisting on sweetening them. Add a little more salt to your cereal at first, and you may even indulge in a little cream when you omit the sugar.

Miss Sarah J. N.—Excessive perspiration is weakening and indicates a condition that should not be allowed to continue. If you react properly to a cold shower, you will tone the glands in the skin and that will help some; however, the general health is usually at fault, especially the nerves when the skin is overly active. Do everything possible to improve your health and take the baths also if you can; there is a great deal of exhilaration derived from such baths besides that of the direct action on the skin.

"Mrs. M. D. F.—The preparation you used was a dye and the henna in it amounted to so little that it was negligible. As the dye will not color your hair any more, I should surmise some change had taken place in your hair or scalp which neutralized the effects of the dye.

I should think the manufacturers of this preparation would be glad to know the effect this dye had on your hair; and no doubt, they would give you intelligent advice on whether or no you should continue to use it.

If you decide to go back to your natural shade of hair, it is advisable to cut all the dyed hair off, as it will be a long and embarrassing experience to explain or cover up faded and streaked hair.

PIMENTO AND PEPPER CROPS MORE VALUABLE

Less Acreage Than Last Year Expected to Bring In Better Returns

Although Orange county's pepper crop will be smaller this year than last, the valuation will probably be higher, according to J. A. Knapp, of Garden Grove, who today estimated that the crop of chili and pimiento peppers in the county would amount to nearly $1,000,000 this year.

Fewer Chills Planted
Approximately 4000 acres of land in Orange county are planted to peppers this year. Last year the acreage was considerably more. Chili pepper planting this year shows a decrease over last year.

There are two varieties of chili peppers. Only about 60 per cent of the land last year planted to California Mexican chilis is planted to the variety this year and a decrease of approximately 25 per cent has been noticed in acreage growing California long red chili peppers. An increase has been recorded in pimiento acreage, according to Knapp. Many growers have planted pimientos instead of the chili peppers.

One of the reasons for the decrease in acreage is the fact that low prices prevailed last year and farmers did not market the product readily. It is believed by Knapp that the reduced production this year will bring much better prices and an easier market.

Expect $500,000 Return
Knapp declares that the pimiento crop this year should bring approximately $500,000 to ranchers and that the chili crop should return about the same amount to the growers.

Harvesting of the pimiento crop will start the last of this month. Harvesting of the chili peppers will not start until the first of October and the chilis will not be on the market until about the middle of November.

More than 150 carloads of peppers should be shipped from the county this year, according to the estimate by Knapp. He declares that the pepper crop should amount to more than 100,000 tons.

Japanese growers are in the minority this year, and most of them are working for others, according to reports. A number of Mexican growers are also scattered over the county.

MACHINES AID U. S. IN DAIRY INDUSTRY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—The advantages of cheap labor and cheap fodder, which have given foreign countries a lead in the dairy market, are being offset in America by modern machinery and new methods.

American dairymen are using milking machines, automatic feeders, litter carriers, tractors, feed grinders, hay loaders and other mechanical equipment to reduce labor costs.

Testing associations are discovering better methods of handling cows. New and efficient methods for sanitation and herd improvement are being introduced to increase the milk yield.

There are more than 24,000,000 milk-producing cows in the United States, and 732 cow-testing associations operate in 38 states to improve dairy conditions.

The leading dairy countries are Holland, Switzerland, Denmark, Canada and New Zealand, with strong competition from Argentina, Great Britain, Russia and Italy. American machines and methods are giving the dairymen of this country an opportunity to break into the strong world market and make a place for the United States as a dairy product exporting nation.

Fonck Atlantic Flight Test for Plane Builders

PARIS, Aug. 11.—All France is waiting for the outcome of Rene Fonck's trans-Atlantic flight, not so much because of the personality of the war ace, but because of the effect it will have on the nation's air program.

Experts admit that more than half the existing machines, some of which date back 10 years, must be replaced within two years. The result is that French companies are competing vigorously for popularity.

The Sikorsky plane, according to Fonck's friends, will be able to enter the lists with the strongest chances of success if the flight is successful, as it combines the speed necessary for scouting and the carrying power essential for bombing. The formation of a French branch of the Sikorsky company, with Fonck as its head, is reported imminent.

FARM FOREST VALUABLE
The farm forests of North Carolina are the farmers' best savings banks. In many instances the presence or condition of the timber on a farm is the deciding factor in the making or refusing of a loan by banks, according to R. W. Gruber, extension forester of North Carolina state college.

FOURTH OF WHEAT CROP
The wheat crop of the United States is from 20 to 25 per cent of the world crop. The world crop is usually from three to three and a half billion bushels a year.

KANSAS WHEAT QUEEN TO MAKE MORE FROM BUMPER CROP THAN PRESIDENT'S SALARY

At 55 Years Old, She Has Ranch of 1950 Acres and She Intends to Purchase More Farm Land

BY C. L. JACOBY

NEA Service Writer

(Copyright, 1926, NEA Service, Inc.)

DODGE CITY, Kas., Aug. 11.—

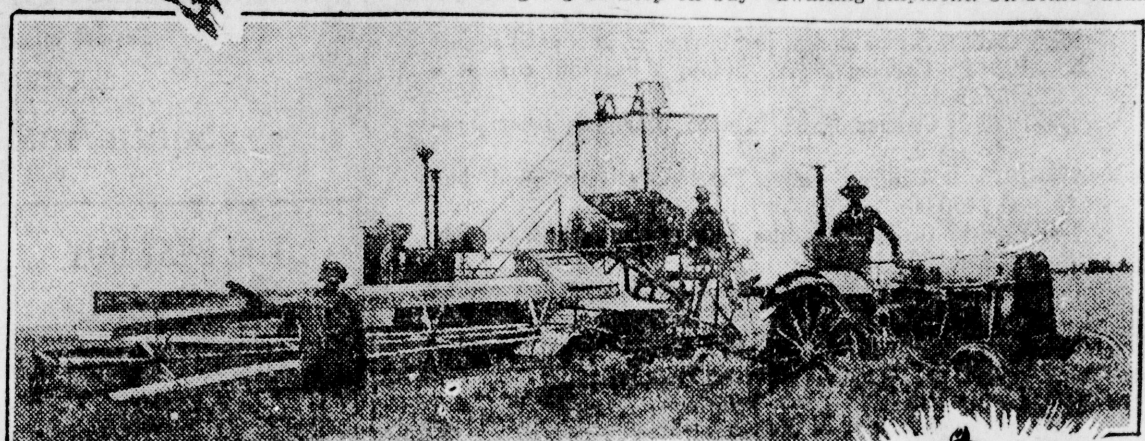

The great wheat country of southwestern Kansas is an empire in itself, and it has a real empress in the person of Mrs. Ida Watkins, "wheat queen" of Kansas and probably of all the world.

A decade ago Mrs. Watkins had never set foot in a wheat field. Now, at 55, she has a farm of 1950 acres in Haskell county. The farm this year will yield her slightly more than 50,000 bushels, which will mean about $75,000—an amount equal to President Coolidge's salary. And she's going to keep on buying more land!

lots across the road were many more thousands. Neither she nor her 32-year-old son, Ed Watkins, spirited effort to get caught up on her housework, sorely neglected because of the demands the harvest had made on her.

"You know, when it comes time to harvest a person can't do much else," she explained. "We must work just the same on Sundays, whether we believe in it or not. This is the only day I have any time to do anything about the house."

In the yard in front of her home were long ricks containing thousands of bushels of threshed wheat, awaiting shipment. On some vacant

PROBLEMS OF THE SOIL

Q. Can you tell me what worm injures peaches? Have had an orchard for several years but have never had any trouble with worms until now. They seem to get around the stem and in the side of the fruit, especially where the suture is. Please advise.—S. B. R.

A. The peach twig-borer is undoubtedly the insect you refer to. Earlier in the season they attack buds and twigs, killing them outright. You can usually find them at work in the axils of the twigs shortly after the new growth begins to develop.

The regulation lime-sulphur as applied for curi-and usually controls the summer. Once or twice a year, in orchards where its presence is suspected a little arsenate of lead should be added to the lime sulphur. If lime-sulphur sprays are thoroughly applied each spring as the flower buds are swelling or breaking there will be little if any damage to the fruit. It is when the lime-sulphur sprays are omitted that we have twig-borer damage.

Q. I would like to know why a loquat tree I have does not set fruit. It is about five years old and has had good care, being given plenty of water and fertilizer. It makes so much growth that I have to cut it back a little during the summer. Once or twice a few fruits have ripened, but it surely ought to bear more. Does the loquat need another tree near by to pollinate it?—Mrs. F. L. W.

A. It is possible that the tree is making too much wood growth. Excessive vegetative growth is usually at the expense of fruit. The time of pruning is also a factor to be considered. If what pruning you do is delayed until after the new growth is completed you would automatically reduce your crop to the extent of your pruning. The loquat bears only on the new wood that is formed early in the season. If, therefore, pruning is not done until the new growth is well started the next year's crop will certainly be more or less reduced, depending upon the amount of new growth cut away. Prune very early in the spring, immediately after picking the fruit. Do not prune while blossoming, but just before.

Loquat blossoms are perfect and do not really need pollen from other trees, although possibly fruit setting might be heavier if there were some cross-pollination.

Q. Will you kindly give me some information as to the value of seaweed as a fertilizer? Can it be freely used without danger to the land and does it contain the principal fertilizing elements?—M. B.

A. Seaweed has been used as a fertilizer from earliest times. It is still used for manurial purposes in England, Scotland, Wales and other countries. It contains nitrogen, phosphoric acid, potash and lime in varying amounts, different species of seaweeds varying somewhat in their constituents. Different analyses indicate that in a ton of seaweed the nitrogen ranges from 3 1/2 to 29 pounds, the phosphoric acid from 1 to 6 1/2 pounds, the potash from 3 to 23 pounds and the lime from 7 1/2 to 20 pounds. These analyses were made following the rinsing off of the salt water and the removal of superficial moisture.

Seaweed preferably should be allowed to leach before being incorporated with the soil that excess amounts of sodium chloride (common salt) may be removed. The salt contained in seaweed is practically the only deterrent to its use. If used in very large amounts without composting and leaching an accumulation of salt may result. If turned under in the fall and heavy rains follow, irrigations are given, a large amount of the salt content may be washed out in the drainage. Where it is piled and thoroughly leached before being applied to the land, the salt problem need hardly be considered.

Q. I have a patch of kale literally covered with red, yellow ing more land!

Mrs. Watkins reminds you just a little of Harry Leon Wilson's "Ma Pettinill"—only she farms on a much greater scale than did the energetic lady of Red Gap.

Ran Cattle Ranch

Born in Nowaday county, Mo., she spent her childhood near Wichita, Kas., and in the early '90s married Joel Watkins, who took her to Oklahoma where he was homesteading. His cattle ranch prospered, and she took an active interest in it, so that when he died, in 1902, she was well able to operate it herself.

Even in those days she liked to do things on a big scale. She rode her pony over the range daily, and it was not long before they were calling her the "cattle queen" of Oklahoma. Her ranch grew to 2500 acres; her herds of cattle were huge.

About ten years ago she bought her first bit of land in Kansas. She bought it for speculative purposes, never intending to farm it. But in 1920 she put in 200 acres of wheat. That fall she sold the crop for $8844, and that started her thinking. The next year she planted wheat on the rest of her property and began buying more.

She paid $7200 for two quarter sections of land and in the first year drew $8400 worth of wheat from them. Another 250-acre stretch she bought has yielded $17,000 worth of wheat in two years. She bought still another half section for $20 an acre and now is refusing to sell it for twice that price.

Is it any wonder that Mrs. Watkins is enthusiastic about the possibilities of the Kansas wheat belt?

Busy on Sunday, Too
It was on a Sunday in the midst of the harvest season that this correspondent visited her modest four-room cottage on the edge of the town of Sublette, Kas. She was putting in her day of rest in a and black bugs. Have tried everything I know of to get rid of them, even poisoning the patch, but to no avail. Can you supply directions for destroying them?—J. L. S.

A. Harlequin cabbage bugs, so called because of their bright colors, are sucking insects, feeding with beaks inserted inside the plants, hence cannot be poisoned by applications to the exterior. They breed very rapidly and there are several generations during the summer, which accounts for the enormous numbers one sometimes finds on kale or cauliflower.

Preventive measures are all that can satisfactorily be undertaken. After the insects appear in force any insecticide applied to the plants in sufficient strength to kill the insects will also kill or seriously injure the plants. Where kale and its relatives are almost continuously planted, as for poultry food, a cleaning of the old beds as to fallen leaves, stalks, etc., is absolutely necessary. If this is done in the fall or as the old beds are finished, an infestation of new plants is less likely.

Weeds around the kale beds should also be removed, as they form a hiding place for the overwintering bugs. All wild plants of the mustard family anywhere near the beds should be cut down.

Handpicking, both of eggs and adults, will often pay. Early in the morning while they are sluggish, the adults can be shaken from the kale plants into pans of kerosene. The egg clusters are very easily located and with very little trouble can be crushed.

Clean cultivation during the fall and winter, the removal of all host plants, such as mustard, radishes, turnips, etc., near the beds, and hand picking, as above outlined, ought to keep the kale beds free from harlequin cabbage bugs.

Q. What causes the blossoms of tomato plants to all drop off? The plants look healthy and are well cultivated and not too much water given.—M. J. R.

A. The shedding of tomato blossoms is caused chiefly, by imperfect pollination. Imperfect pollination is usually the result of unfavorable weather conditions, such as cold or fog, at blossoming time. Even very hot weather is directly opposed to proper pollination. Sometimes because of unfavorable weather, insects, such as bees, are not at work and the blossoms are not fertilized. Heavy irrigations when the plants are in blossom create a moist condition around them which is unfavorable. Excessive fertilization resulting in a heavy vine growth, occasionally is responsible for non-setting of blossoms. Minute insects, such as thrips, may chafe the blossoms to such an extent that they will fall.

If irrigation is withheld and normal weather follows, there should be no further trouble. A little sulphur scattered over the plants may afford some relief, particularly if any fungus trouble exists.

FARM BUREAU NOT PROMOTING ANY ASPIRANTS

County Organization Is Not Interested in Fortunes of Political Candidates

BY A. M. STANLEY

Secretary-Manager

Orange County Farm Bureau

The farm bureau, as an organization, is not interested in the election of any political officer. Reports that the organization had endorsed certain candidates are without foundation.

Nails Current Rumor

To publicly deny, before a public accusation has been made, may seem an effort to establish an alibi, but the above declaration is made in reference to a rumor, as we have been informed, that is being broadcast over the political grapevine, and as the farm bureau, like Caesar's wife, must be above even suspicion, we are anxious to make our position as an organization definitely clear.

Let us repeat: the farm bureau is not interested in the election of any political officer; it is, however, interested in how that officer may conduct his administration after election, and it is interested in certain economic legislation which to many may have a political color. We regard these endeavors as good citizenship interest in the science of government.

No Endorsements Given

It is true that a director of the farm bureau is seeking a public office, but even he does not possess the endorsement of the farm bureau as a candidate. Neither do the other contestants. So far as the farm bureau is concerned, no officers are ever candidates.

The question of the political candidacy of any aspirant has not been discussed in the meeting of the directors of the Farm Bureau. Nor shall it be discussed if the directors can prevent it. Some of the candidates have addressed the gatherings at farm center meetings, but such appearances do not indicate that the group is prejudiced in their favor. The privilege is opened to all candidates merely as a means of affording the people an opportunity of becoming acquainted with their would-be servants.

CROP CONDITIONS BELOW AVERAGE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Practically all crops, with the exception of corn, oats and hay, improved during July, due to better moisture conditions, the crop reporting board of the agricultural department announced.

The composite condition of all crops, however, was 4.2 per cent below the 10-year average of condition of crops on August 1. The present outlook is for yields of 2.9 per cent below the average yield per acre for the last 10 years.

The corn crop is estimated at 328,000,000 bushels below last year's and the oat crop 200,000 bushels short.

Winter wheat production is 230,000,000 bushels more than last year. The estimated production of threshing wheat crop increased 13,000,000 bushels during July, because of favorable weather conditions.

Federal Plan of Redistricting Is On State Ballot

The "federal plan" of reapportionment of California's legislative representation has been assured of a place on the November ballot by the filing with the secretary of state of a petition of 95,510 names. Seven thousand and sixty of the names came from Orange county. This plan has the active endorsement of the farm bureau and other agricultural organizations. It has been given No. 28, the last item on the list.

The federal plan will give Orange county one senator and two assemblymen, it is stated.

TWO-SOW HOG HOUSE

The old style central hog house is passing out of existence on western farms. The two-sow type of hog house is taking the place of the larger house formerly used. It has been found that the two-sow house is practical because it is cooler in the summer, warmer in winter and more economical than the central house.

WHEAT WASTE

As much as one and one-fourth bushels of wheat an acre may be left behind in the field at threshing time unless special care is taken to gather up the heads which shake off between the time the shocks are gathered up during the threshing or stacking, according to Illinois college of agriculture reports.

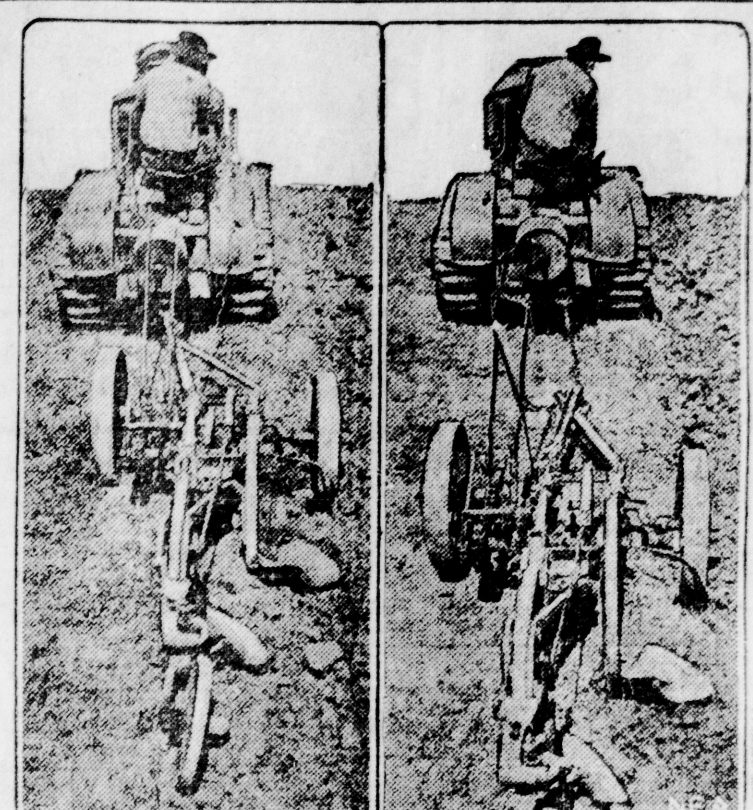

FARM ORGANIZATIONS

Farmers' business organizations in the United States had 2,500,000 members in December, 1925, compared with about 500,000 in 1915, according to estimates based on reports received by the department of agriculture.

LESS DISEASE IS FOUND AMONG HOGS OF NATION

With current progress in eradicating tuberculosis from cattle, a noticeable decline of the same disease among swine is taking place. This announcement was made by the department of agriculture, United States department of agriculture, is based on field observations and by records of the federal meat inspection service.

A striking example of the effect of the work has been received by the department from an Iowa packing company which has "kept books" on such losses for the last seven years. In 1919 the average loss per hog caused by tuberculosis infection was 75 cents. This figure is the economic loss for hogs slaughtered in the plant. In 1920 the loss declined to 66 cents, in 1921 to 49 cents, and in 1922 to 32 cents. Since 1923 the loss has declined further to 26 cents.

"We have actual knowledge, through experience," the company adds, "that the tuberculin test applied to cattle has reduced bovine tuberculosis among cattle and hogs following them, and has cleaned up the hogs from the disease."

Further evidence is given by the packer's report for Hardin county, Iowa, which is an area accredited as free from bovine tuberculosis. During a 9-month's period more than 11,000 hogs were shipped from this county and slaughtered, with an average economic loss, caused by tuberculosis, of only 47 cents each. This figure is less than a fifth of the general average which in turn is about a third of the loss in 1919 when systematic tuberculosis eradication was just begun.

An important development of this work is the discovery that throughout the Central West especially, many poultry flocks are tuberculosis infected, and some swine are traceable to that source. Fowl tuberculosis yields readily, however, to methods of control and eradication. Thus the outlook for the complete suppression of tuberculosis among all kinds of livestock is encouraging, Federal veterinary officials assert.

Small Increase Seen In Income To U. S. Farmers

Income from farm production the past season, 1925-26, again showed a moderate improvement, but farmers as a class are still at a financial disadvantage to industrial workers, according to an analysis of receipts and expenditures just completed by the United States department of agriculture.

Gross income from agriculture is estimated at $12,415,000,000 for the year, compared with $12,003,000,000 for 1924-25, an increase of about 3 per cent, the increase appearing in both cash income from sales and in the value of products consumed by farm families. Increased income from potatoes, dairy products, and meat animals more than offset declines in income from grains and cotton, the department says.

The total gross income is made up of $9,831,000,000 computed as cash income from sales, and $2,584,000,000, the value of food and fuel consumed on farms. It includes $3,577,000,000 for dairy and poultry products; $2,746,000,000 for meat animals; $1,682,000,000 for cotton and cotton seed; $1,625,000,000 for fruits and vegetables, and $1,565,000,000 for grains.

Receipts increased somewhat more than expenses, yielding an increase in net income available for all capital employed including reward for managing the industry, of 4 per cent, compared with a 13 per cent increase in 1924-25. This larger net income represents a rate of return for all capital and management of 4.6 per cent compared with 4.4 per cent the preceding year. These rates are not comparable with rates of return usually shown for other industries. Estimates of comparable returns for corporations in 1923 gave 11 per cent as the return on capital and management compared with 3.3 per cent for agriculture.

Common Faults Are Easy to Overcome Say Experts of Experiment Station

How do you hitch your tractor?

Is there side-draft or does the load trail straight back?

Are you using too much fuel and doing too little work per hour? Is there unnecessary friction on the tractor wheel bearings, too rapid wear, too many repairs? Is your machine hard to steer?

These faults are common but fairly easy to overcome. Side-draft is present in a tractor when the direction of pull is not parallel to the direction in which the implement moves.

Hitch a team by a 10-foot chain to the side of a box car and have them pull it along the track. You will notice the animals side-stepping. Their side-slip will crowd the wheel flanges against the rail thereby greatly increasing friction. Should you hitch the team to the car drawbar head and allow them to walk between the rails they would move the car more easily and comfortably.

The same principle applies to the use of farm implements, says Arthur G. Hoffman, of the college of agriculture, agricultural experiment station, University of California.

It has learned that when a small tractor running with both drivers on the unplowed land is pulling a two or three bottom plow, the center of resistance in the plow moves in a line considerably offset from the line in which the drawbar center moves.

Not only does this affect the pulling power of the tractor but it increases side strains and wear on the plow, which will pull on occasion one-fifth harder than necessary.

"There is no excuse for side-draft," says Hoffman, "when the load is such that it can just as well trail straight back to the center of the drawbar, as in scripple leveling, disk dragging, packing, cultivating, hauling and seeding."

"In other cases offsetting the hitch will settle the problem. This will cause one driver to pull more load than the other, but will not cause side-draft."

"When the path of the tractor is limited by the edge of the furrow wall or of standing grain, or rows of trees or vines, side-draft is practically unavoidable, but it may be reduced to do little harm."

"At least nine-tenths of the side-draft trouble occurs in plowing. Small tractors are able to pull only two or three plow bottoms have more difficulty than larger outfits."

"A rope, chain, loose clevis or any other object capable of transmitting a pull will, if free to swivel at both ends, set itself in the direction of the force it is transmitting. Such a device will show the amount of offset."

Rules to Follow

"Side-draft may be reduced or eliminated by these rules:

"1—Reduce the angle of offset to nothing and there will be no side-draft."

"2—Make the angle of offset very small (by using a long chain, for example) and the side-draft will be correspondingly small."

"3—Reduce the total draft required and the side-draft will be reduced in the same proportion."

"Side-draft, when necessary, may be divided between tractor and plow, causing the load to be heavier on the driver nearer the point of hitch."

Hoffman points out that side-slip and upward forces are always and necessarily present in plowing, but these things can be largely eliminated.

OLEOMARGARINE MEASURE GIVEN BALLOT PLACE

Referendum Invoked by Makers of Artificial Butter to Curb Regulations

The Johnson oleomargarine law will be number three on the ballot at the general election in November, according to notification received by Sam H. Greene, secretary of California Dairy Council from Frank C. Jordan, secretary of state, D. Eymann Huff, manager of Hewes ranch said today.

This law was passed by the 1925 California Legislature and signed by the governor. The referendum was invoked against it by manufacturers of oleomargarine.

The proposition upon which the people of the state will vote is, "Shall the action of the Legislature be sustained?" Therefore, those who are in favor of the provisions of the Johnson law will vote "Yes."

Each "No" is a vote to kill the law and defeat the will of the people as expressed by the action of the Legislature, Huff said.

"When this measure was before the legislature it had the united support of California agriculture, women's organizations and public health and welfare agencies," Huff added. "Opposition came from a small, but powerful group of non-resident manufacturers of oleomargarine."

"The line-up today is the same. Agriculture and the friends of agriculture and public health are working for a 'Yes' vote of the people. 'The law does not prohibit the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine, nor in any way restrict production. What it does is to provide means whereby oleomargarine, which is not a California agricultural product, can be brought under the same degree of inspection that already

HOW TO ANSWER BLIND CLASSIFIED ADS

In answering blind addresses (for instance, L. Box 35, Register, or other similar addresses), please be careful to use the precise address given in the ad. Write address plainly, and do not use "The Register office" or "The Register office" as an address. Always include your answer in the envelope. Do not use "T. F. (Till Forbid) Ads" if an advertiser who has made application for credit and opened an account with The Register Credit department in the regular form desires to have any "Till" advertisement published continuously "until further notice" he may do so by signing a "Till" order to that effect. An advertisement thus begun will appear regularly until countermanded by written order.

BOX OFFICE REPLIES

The Register postoffice department is conducted for the benefit of patrons who wish answers to come to the office. Advertisers are furnished with identification cards which must be presented at The Register office. For the protection of our patrons, replies are not given out except on presentation of box card.

No record is kept of the names and addresses of patrons using The Register postoffice, and therefore no information concerning these advertisers can be supplied. A check is made for the words "Box A-234, care The Register."

Says

YANKS "KAYO" DOPE

If the Yankees win the American League pennant, and they certainly appear to be on the way, it will be a "kayo" for expert opinion.

In the spring the New York Americans were given little consideration in the pre-season pennant talk.

The Yankees have just weathered a tough slump. They came out of it by putting over a big winning streak. Ability to win games in large clusters has been one of the outstanding reasons for the team's success.

SUBS FILL BREACH

When Bob Meusel was put out of it for two months with a broken foot, Babe Ruth handicapped by a "charley-horse" and Pitcher Hoyt and Catchers Collins and Bengough suffering with bad arms, it looked as if the Yankees might be gashed for the Yankees.

However, the club had enough reserve strength to tide over the rough days and proceeded to prove its courage by a great comeback.

One reason why expert opinion appears to be in for a jolt because of the fine showing of the Yankees, is the fact that it really is a much better ball club than any one rated it.

And best of all, it has a punch at the bat that carries plenty of weight for the opposition at all times.

SHEELY REAL STAR

First Baseman Earl Sheely of the Chicago White Sox performs with such ease and grace in the field that he has never received the credit due him. His only handicap is lack of speed.

"Sheely is the greatest first baseman I have ever seen when it comes to handling a thrown ball," remarked Umpire Bill Dinneen to me the other day.

When you consider that Dinneen has been associated with the major leagues for 30 years as one of the game's greatest pitchers, and an equally good umpire, you can appreciate the compliment he is paying Sheely.

NONE IS BARRED

"I don't bar Fred Tenney, Hal Chase, George Sisler, or any of the other great first basemen of the past or present," continued Dinneen, "when it comes to handling a thrown ball."

"Sheely is a wonder on high throws, his height, of course, being a decided help, but he is just as skillful digging up the low ones."

"And on balls thrown into the runner he has no equal. It is uncommon the way he can grab them with that gloved hand."

To all of which I say, "Amen."

ROOKIE LOOKS GOOD

If his first two starts are a criterion of his ability, the Washington club appears to have picked up a jewel in Pitcher Crowder, recently secured from Birmingham of the Southern Association.

Detroit beat Crowder 3-2 in his debut, pitching all its runs in the first inning on four hits. After that the Tigers couldn't do a thing with the "rookie" right hander.

I called balls and strikes in Crowder's second appearance and it has been some years since I have been more favorably impressed by a recruit's stuff.

I am ready to go on record that he will make good.

PLENTY OF STUFF

Crowder didn't receive credit for his second start against Chicago since it went into extra innings and was a tie when he made his exit for a pinch-hitter, yet he showed me enough to make me feel positive that Washington has dug up a great possibility.

Crowder gave 10 bases on balls, which doesn't read like good pitching, but he was just missing the plate. Really the 10 bases on balls offered a chance to judge his real worth.

In trouble almost every inning because of his wildness, he always had enough stuff in reserve to pitch himself out of difficulty. Ability to twirl with runners on is a true test of a twirler's greatness. Crowder appears to possess it.

N. Y. BOARD TO HEAR EVIDENCE ON THURSDAY

Champion to Appear Before Commission and Again Ask for License to Battle

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Jack Dempsey moved today to unwind the red tape which has surrounded his efforts to obtain a license to box in this state, which he must have before a bout between him and Gene Tunney here September 18, is definitely assured.

Dempsey, with Gene Normille, business representative, and Arthur F. Driscoll, went to the offices of the boxing commission and put his cards on the table.

Commissioner Brower today announced that the boxing commission would hold a special session tomorrow morning at 10:30. He said the license committee had been invited to attend the session.

The heavyweight champion told Bert Stand, secretary of the commission, that he had signed no less than three contracts to fight Harry Wills, negro challenger, none of which "took."

After Wills' challenge had been accepted by the commission, Dempsey signed a contract in Niles, Mich., on September 29 last year, he said. Other agreements were signed subsequently on October 6 at Huntington, W. Va., and on March 8, this year at Los Angeles.

"I'm tired of these formalities," Dempsey said. "I told Stand that I had promised to fight Gene Tunney and would sign a contract as soon as I receive a license."

The champion then went to the office of Tex Rickard, the promoter, to ask if he might leave the city tonight for his training camp near Saratoga Springs.

Chairman Flaherty of the athletic commission said that so far as he knew, no special session of the boxing body would be held today, whereby action on Dempsey's license application might be facilitated.

Piping 'Em Off

Yesterday's Hero—Tyrus Cobb, manager of the Detroit Tigers, who drove in the winning run for his team, while pinch hitting for O'Rourke in the seventh. The Tigers beat the Yankees, 5 to 3.

The Pittsburgh Pirates took the Brooklyn Robins for the second in a row, 10 to 2. Leo Meadows went the route for the champions.

The Phillies and the Cincinnati Reds used three pitchers each, in a slugfest. Philadelphia won 10 to 8.

The Washington Senators pounded back the Cleveland Indians, 4 to 1. Reuther held the tribe to six hits, while Leyson allowed nine.

The White Sox lost a heart breaker to the Athletics 4 to 3, in the eleventh, when Morehart, subbing for Eddie Collins at second, dropped the ball after tagging Hale out. Hale galloped home on the next hit.

Hurley Virgil Barnes of the New York Giants held the Cubs to four hits while his mates made twice that number. The Giants won 2 to 0.

Rhem pitched good ball and the St. Louis Cards downed the Braves 3 to 1.

Ken Williams' homer with George Sisler on the paths, gave the St. Louis Browns a 6 to 4 victory over the Boston Red Sox, after the count was tied in the eighth.

Mulcahy held the Missions to six scattered hits and one run while his Star team mates were knocking in 8 runs off Pillette and Bryan. O'Doul's three bagger, double and single aided the Stars.

A four run rally by the Solons in the eighth gave them a six to five win over Oakland. Delaney deserved better luck but got poor support. Keating had to come to Martin's rescue in the eighth.

In a slugfest where a total of 34 base hits were garnered Seattle beat Portland 15 to 3. Seattle slammed 20 hits off Keefe, Lingier and Leverette.

San Francisco and Los Angeles were enroute from the north and open at Los Angeles today.

BLAUERS OPEN INDOOR LEAGUE WITH VICTORY

The Blauer Grocery company's first indoor baseball team opened the new Santa Ana City Indoor Baseball league last night with a victory over the Excelsior Creamery company, 7 to 1, at the Lincoln school grounds.

For six innings it was a nip and tuck game with the Blauer team one run to the good at the close of the fifth stanza. In the first half of the seventh the Excelsior boys found Gene Hitt and hammered in one run evening the count one all.

Bergman, who had been pitching championship baseball, weakened in the seventh inning and the Blauer team, waiting for such an opportunity, took advantage of Bergman's letup and slammed hit after hit and when the smoke had cleared six runs had been pushed across the platter. No further scoring was done in the eighth and ninth innings, both Bergman and Hitt continuing airtight pitching.

Hitt had the better of the pitching duel in that he struck out eleven batters while Bergman fanned three. Hitt, however, walked five men, but was touched for only four hits. Bergman walked two and was found for a total of 10 safe blows.

Tonight the O'Donnell Motors will clash with the Santa Ana Lumber company team. Following is the box score:

"RED" GRANGE BACK ON HIS ICE WAGON

WHEATON, Ill., Aug. 11.—Harold (Red) Grange is back on the ice wagon again.

Armed with his solid silver ice tongs and clad in a khaki shirt and trousers, "Red" covered his ice route yesterday for the first time since completing his moving picture efforts.

Grange is teaming with Archie MacKinney, Wheaton college athlete, on the ice wagon squad. His resumption of work in the ice business was taken as an indication that "Red" is already in training for professional appearances this fall.

TO SELECT DAVIS CUP TEAM TODAY

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 11.—Vincent Richards and R. N. Williams, twice conquerors of Tilden and "Little Bill" Johnston in doubles matches of the Davis cup trials, today were to face the champion and his partner in the third and last go.

On today's outcome will depend in the make-up of the doubles combination that will represent America in the Davis cup meet.

Richards and Williams won yesterday in a grueling five set match, 8-6, 6-4, 3-6, 4-6, 6-3. The five set fray was decided on by the cup committee, according to the wish of Tilden.

Tilden defeated Lewis White in his singles match. Johnston was held to even terms in his two set match with George M. Lott, Jr.

Field Narrows In Tennis Meet

CHICAGO, Aug. 11.—The field had narrowed to 16 as junior tennis players took to the court for fourth round matches here today, in the national championships of the grass courts of the South Side Tennis club.

Three contenders stood out as likely winners. They are: Berkeley Hall, Austin, Texas; John Doe, Santa Monica, Cal., and Bob Seller, San Francisco.

In the boys' division, Warren Junior Coen of Kansas City and "Little Bill" O'Loughlin of Pittsburgh looked like probable finalists.

PARKRIDGE FLYING FIELD IS POPULAR

That the Partridge Flying field, located at Parkridge Country Club, Riverside county, is rapidly becoming popular in aviation circles is evidenced by the frequency with which the field is utilized by airplanes from near and far. It is now quite a common sight to see a squadron of planes appear over the horizon and settle in this new valley landing field while their pilots partake of luncheon, golf, etc., at Parkridge.

Pursuit squadron 477 of Clover Field, Santa Monica, is the latest group of flyers to discover the convenience of this new field. Monday, six planes of the squadron, enroute to Mt. Wilson to take photographs for the government, stopped at Parkridge for two hours.

The squadron was headed by Flight Commander Geo. P. Kiene and Operations Officer Norman F. Hall. The other members of the party were Lieuts. Raymond Godbe, Walter Archer, Russell Larson, Earl W. Clark, Kenneth Hawkins and Major John Whitman. The officers dined, played golf and rode horses at Parkridge.

SHORT SPORTS

RYE, N. Y.—Miss Helen Willis started in the New York State championships yesterday, running through 24 games, disposing of two opponents in love sets. One match was played in the men's singles of the southern New York state championships. Brian Norton, St. Louis, defeating Philip Neer of California, 6-4, 6-1.

NEW YORK—Willie Hoppe lost two more blocks of three cushion billiards to Andrew St. Jean in their handicap match yesterday.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y.—Rapture, owned by H. P. Whitney, won the Alabama stakes for three year old fillies yesterday. Black Maria was second in the mile and a quarter run. Joseph E. Widener's quarter finished third.

PORTLAND, Ore.—Leo Lomsky, Aberdeen middleweight, scored a technical knockout over Mickey Rockson, Portland, in the seventh of a scheduled ten round go here last night. The Aberdeen assassin had his opponent helpless when the bell ended the sixth round.

SAN FRANCISCO—John Friberg, Swedish heavyweight, lost last night the right to meet Joe Stecher, world champion wrestler by winning two falls out of three from Jack Taylor, of Wyoming.

BUDAPEST, Aug. 11.—Patriotic members of the old Hungarian nobility have created a fund to support former Queen Zita and her family of eight children, who are now living in San Sebastian, Spain.

Out of this fund the widow of former King Charles is assured an allowance of $60,000 a year, which with the income she derives from her private properties in Hungary, nets her about $100,000 a year.

Hungary, as a state, is forbidden to pay any government funds to the former queen. Hence, the Hungarian nobility, like Count Apponyi and Count Andrássy, have helped her out of their own funds.

When a door key is hung up outside a house in Sweden it is a sign that the family is not at home.

GRID GOSSIP SHOWS U. S. C. LOOKS STRONG

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 11.—The prospects of the University of Southern California winning the Coast conference this coming season were never brighter at this early stage of the game. All the conference coaches have practically characterized the Trojans as "the team to beat."

U. S. C. loomed formidable last season. Undoubtedly they were a strong, threatening outfit. In the early part of the season they looked like world beaters, but along came Stanford and W. S. C., both considered out of the running from the start, to put the skids under the southerners.

The Trojan weak spots were lack of two good tackles and an efficient quarterback. Coach Howard Jones is furnished with a wealth of material by the freshman squad of last season. But, notwithstanding, U. S. C. probably lost fewer varsity stars than anyone in the conference by graduation.

Judging by the reports from the south following spring practice this year the Trojans will have their two good tackles and the chances for a fast-thinking, speedy-acting caller of the signals are enhanced by several colorful prospects.

If any team finishes ahead of the Trojans in the struggle for the championship it will be one of these four—Stanford, Washington, Oregon Aggies, or California.

While Jones knows just about where he stands already in the way of regulars, other conference strategists will be worrying as follows:

Warner at Stanford will be trying to fill the shoes of Ernie Nevers, one of the greatest fullbacks the gridiron has ever produced, and "Mugs" Mitchell, his reliable quarterback.

Bagshaw at Washington may find himself in a quandary to fill the places of Wilson and Tesreau, his two star backs, lost through graduation. The value of Wilson was demonstrated in the post-season Alabama battle. The Huskies could get nowhere without him. Tesreau's defense and Wilson's offense will be missed.

"Nibs" Price may get gray hairs this season as coach at California while attempting to secure replacements of Carey, guard; Carlson, quarterback, and Imlay and Dixon, backs.

Both Idaho and Montana lost heavily by graduation and this season will no doubt be spent in building for the following year, so these two schools are not expected to obstruct the Trojans' path.

It looks like the Trojans will supplant the Bears as the "team to beat."

Two More Fail To Swim Channel

CAPE GRIS NEZ, Aug. 11.—Two more swimmers, a man and a woman, today failed to emulate Gertrude Ederle's feat in swimming the English channel. They were Omer Perrault, a French Canadian, and Mme. Jane Sion, a French woman. Since Gertrude set a new mark for speed across the channel Friday, four swimmers have failed over the same course.

Perrault and Mme. Sion returned to Calais at 6 a. m. today aboard their tug. They abandoned their efforts at about 3 a. m., probably owing to bad weather, after having been in the water about five hours.

PARTS, ACCESSORIES AND SERVICE

KASHA LATEST MATERIAL FOR AUTUMN GOWNS

PARIS, AUG. 11.—Among the new materials to be used for autumn and winter clothes is kasha, which now forms the foundation of all practical dresses and coats. It is plain and patterned, either kind trimmings, the other, and is made in all colors. Beige and sand colors are now closely rivaled by grays. Wine and rust reds, light and dark bottle green are frequent, and several colors woven into a plain background give a soft rainbow sheen to a plain surface.

Loose Looking Squares

A wide darning stitch in string colored wool is worked on plain and colored kashas to form loose looking squares. Gold threads are woven into others, and on some, irregular knobs of gold are embossed. There is also a kasha with silk threads interwoven to look like a shadow of a tree of a cloud in a Japanese picture.

Patterns of leaves in gold threads are woven into plain kashas, colored and silk flowers cover plain foundations; there are some stripes, not many. Plaids are not very popular, but checks are. Many of the new kashas are as fine as silk and very light in weight. They will be used not only for making dresses and coats, but also for linings. Soft ivory white, rose, blue, yellow kashas with silk or gold thread patterns interwoven, are ideal for velvet and cloth coats.

Blanket Cloth Developed

Blanket cloth, under many different names, has also been developed in many ways. The surface of this warm winter material is now variously patterned. The wool is worked up into squares, stripes, checks, to form deep ridges and honeycomb cells. Some show two colors, others only one.

A rust red woolen cloth is raised to form small checks in the same color, a dark green gives the same embossed effect in a lighter shade. Again, there is a mosaic pattern of raised wool on a smooth background, and in two colors there are curly woolen cloths, some in stripes and squares, others plain. For sport there is a woolen material closely darned in a second color, mauve on gray, blue on beige, are instances.

Tchinskis, or georgettes, is now richly and gorgeously patterned. Flowing patterns in flowers, stiff designs in conventional figures, squares, plaids and stripes are all to be seen in it. Pale and dark plain colors, shaded, in gold and soft ivory white gradations show Tchinskis in its best.

Velvet Evening Dress

Velvet, light and soft as silk, is used for evening dresses. The latest fashion is patterned velvet. Little flower patterns cover the whole surface in colored shades, in gold or silver threads. They recall the hand-illuminated work on old manuscripts and were, indeed, inspired by an exhibition at the Bibliotheque Nationale. Pale colored velvets are most frequent; pale rose, pale mauve, pale yellow and exquisite shades of gray, white and silver.

Tweeds Are Popular

Tweeds are the materials used for country tailor made clothes. Many of them have a background of gray or light beige flecked lightly with color. In a beige and brown tweed there may be a flock of yellow; in a tweed of two shades of gray, a flock of blue. The flock of color decides the color of the silk jumper and felt hat to be worn with the finished coat and skirt. For traveling, a long easy-fitting coat made in the same material as the coat and skirt is to be recommended. The straight line for skirts and long coats is assured. The short skirt for all tailor made dresses is too practical to be abandoned; it will not be unbearably short or tight. With a tweed skirt a short coat is worn. It may have patch pockets and a belt, or be quite plainly cut, with decorative seams and incrustations as trimmings. Fur collars and cuffs are usual. The kind and quality of the fur give style to the coat. Natural skunk with the white left in it, wild cat, leopard or tiger, Russian opossum, or any of the two-colored or patterned skins, are used.

Evening dresses and cloaks get richer and more elaborate every season. Manufacturers produce materials which look as if they were hand embroidered, hand painted, hand tacked. Designs, though machine done, have here and there a little irregularity to imitate the flaw which was formerly only distinguished handwork. Again, dress-makers hand embroider over machine embroidery, and cut up one-patterned materials to trim another. Scissors are applied to the most expensive materials and pattern and colors are lavishly mixed. The machine-made is no longer monotonous.

House of Lords Debates Plover Eggs Collection

LONDON, AUG. 11.—Plover's eggs, which are in great demand for the breakfast table by those who can afford them, no longer will be available if Lord Buckmaster's amendment to the wild birds protection bill becomes a law.

Speaking in support of his amendment in the house of lords, which is to make the collection and sale of plover's eggs illegal, Lord Buckmaster said that the ignorance of those who collected the eggs extended to those who eat them.

Viscount Grey, a well-known lover of birds, said the plover was becoming a rare bird on the northeast coast, owing to the collection of its eggs for the London market.

EVENING SALUTATION

Grave on thy heart each past "red-letter day!"
Forget not all the sunshine of the way
By which the Lord hath led thee; answered prayers,
And joys unasked, strange blessings, lifted cares, Grand promise-echoes! Thus thy life shall be
One record of His love and faithfulness to thee.

MUST HAVE CLOSED SEASON

P. A. Stanton, of Seal Beach, has called the attention of The Register to a condition that he believes deserves the attention of residents of Orange county who are interested in preserving shellfish of the Orange county coast. Stanton points out, and we are sure he is right, that unless a closed season is declared against the taking of shellfish of all kinds, with the exception of mussels, within five years there will be no more shellfish along the coast.

To thousands of us shellfish is a word that means nothing. There are hundreds of others, however, who take keen enjoyment in gathering the various clams and abalones and who enjoy the soups and other dishes that can be provided by the use of the shellfish. To these hundreds, the shellfish are an asset of the coast, and as an asset the shellfish should be preserved.

Stanton says that a few years ago no less than five varieties of shellfish were obtainable with ease in Alamitos bay. Now there are but two.

The same story comes to The Register from other points along the coast. In places, the mature shellfish have almost disappeared in the last year or two. The small stock is being taken. There is nothing left for breeding purposes.

A closed season for two or three years is necessary.

And, while we are talking about closed seasons, we might again refer to the advisability of taking some steps to prevent the disappearance of Orange county quail. A closed season of several years would give what few quail remain a chance to increase their numbers. Thereafter, a shorter season and a smaller bag limit might be instituted by which the quail might hold their own against the hunters.

WEATHER OBSERVATION

The navy cargo ship Kittery, operating between Hampton Roads and the West Indies, has had remarkable success in eluding the hurricanes that infest that quarter of the world. Much interest has developed in the way the Kittery does it. There is no guesswork about it, no goosebone weather prophecy. It is straight meteorological science, helped by the newest of inventions.

The officers of the Kittery get regular weather reports by radio, giving air conditions and pressure data from many points. From these they construct their own weather maps, aided by their own careful barometric observations and the continuous use of their own radio outfit to detect approaching storms. They are able, over and over again, to determine the location and direction of a new storm by means of the "static" it causes, and take measures to avoid it. Because of their success, their system is being recommended by the Navy department to other navigators.

This is a game that can be played by land as well as by sea, though ordinarily less important on land. Any intelligent boy, with a government weather report coming in once a day and with a barometer and a "directional loop" radio set, ought to be able to detect approaching storms in the same way and establish a reputation as a weather sharp in his own family and neighborhood. This would be especially useful on a farm.

MEXICAN ARMS EMBARGO

For some years the United States government has maintained an embargo on the shipment of arms from this country to Mexico. This was done in the interest of peace, for the benefit of both countries. Recently there has been a disposition to lift the embargo, on the ground that the growing strength of the Mexican regime and the restoration of order in Mexico had made such a policy unnecessary.

Now, because of the flare-up of religious troubles in Mexico, the matter has been reconsidered, and the government at Washington is disposed to continue the embargo.

This is obviously the wise thing to do, and the American thing. Either on humanitarian grounds or on the grounds of traditional policy, a government that has always kept aloof from religious controversy in its own country cannot properly interfere in such controversy in a neighboring country, or do anything calculated to promote religious warfare there. The situation in Mexico is bad enough, without the United States taking a hand in it.

"ITALIAN" OR "FASCIST"

Possibly Mussolini was misunderstood when he ordered the "Milizia Italiana," organ of the Fascist militia, to change its name to "Milizia Fascista." When the dictator explained that he didn't like the word "Italian," he might have meant merely that he didn't like it in that particular connection. If he really intends, as has been widely assumed, to go ahead and substitute the word "Fascist" for "Italian" generally, he probably has a bigger job on his hands than most of the Herculean tasks he has yet undertaken.

It doesn't seem likely that the Italian people, whose name has been a symbol of power and glory for 2500 years, will willingly surrender it for the term Fascist, which is the name of a political party only five or six years old. Italy and Italians and all things essentially Italian will probably survive, and keep their proud old name, when Fascism and its effective but ephemeral works are forgotten.

PROSPEROUS CANADA

Canada is evidently thriving. Figures from Ottawa say that the Dominion now has "the largest favorable per capita trade balance in the world."

No wonder Canadian money is at par, or higher—the only money that is sometimes worth more in exchange than our own.

Canada is doing a heap of business, by the way, with the United States. For the year ending with last March it amounted, incoming and outgoing, to

Canada's trade with this country, as it happens, is not "favorable" to her in the usually accepted sense. She bought from us this last year $100,000,000 worth of goods more than she sold us. Canada is our best customer outside of Great Britain. Yet Uncle Sam is a pretty good customer for Canada, too. We bought $485,000,000 worth of stuff from her during the 12 months ending with March, not to mention the liquor smuggled across the border.

Counting that, and the millions that Americans spend in Canada, our good northern neighbor probably does better than an even break with us in the matter of trade. Which is an additional reason why the American tourist in Toronto or Quebec is occasionally amazed to find that his dollar is only worth about 98 cents.

How Far That Balmy Garlic Carries!

San Francisco Chronicle
Garlic needs no special pleader. It has a manner all its own in getting its message across. It is known wherever it goes. The game of Danville and the San Ramon valley, therefore, should get powerful seasoning through the shipment to the East of twelve carloads of this fragrant lily bulb. But in reality there is much more to be said of this shipment than can be expressed in jest.

Evidence continually piles up to show the diversity of California products and the advantage our agriculture enjoys in its opportunity to produce specialty crops. We can grow almost anything that is grown, and so we have only to pick out specialties in demand but which are not well grown or grown at all in other parts of the United States. Some of these give us prime examples. They are not produced commercially elsewhere in the United States. With them all we have to do to maintain our position and profit is to be careful not to overdo them.

And there is one more important precaution to keep watch and ward over the tariff which protects our specialties from ruinous foreign competition.

Something to Be Proud Of

San Francisco Chronicle
California schools are given first place in a national survey recently made by Dr. Frank M. Phillips, chief of the statistical division of the Bureau of Education in the Department of the Interior. The findings are based on the proportion of school population from 5 to 17 years of age in daily attendance and the average expenditures made for school purposes.

This is but another evidence of the truth of the slogan, "California, Where Life Is Better." More children go to school in proportion to population in California than elsewhere because there are proportionately more families that can afford to keep their children in school here than elsewhere. Daily attendance figures are on the average larger, of course, because there are few inclement days to keep the children at home. The general prosperity of the state and our unusual climatic advantages combine to score us number one in school statistics. This is something to be proud of.

Experience a Dear School

Kansas City Times
If the Poincaré ministry should finally succeed in stabilizing the franc at its present value, people will wonder why it wasn't done before. It could have been stabilized five years ago just as easily as now, and the tremendous losses to investors, to salaried people and to the country generally might have been avoided.

But human nature seems to be that way. People haven't the imagination to see the disasters that a certain course will involve. So they push along until they have been knocked down with a club and made all bloody before they will listen to reason. How often in a strike do both sides refuse to yield an inch until after both have suffered severely. Then they reach a compromise which might have been reached at the start, without all the losses the strike entailed.

But as the old saw says, while experience is a dear school, most of us refuse to learn in any other.

Health Topics

By DR. HUGH CUMMING
Surgeon General, United States Health Service

"EAT MORE VEGETABLES" IS PRESCRIPTION
You can't trust your instincts with regard to the amount or kind of food you eat.

There is more danger in America from over-eating than there is from under-eating, despite the prevalence of the reducing fad. More men break down from over-eating after the age of 40 than break down from over-work.

The United States Public Health Service wants you to remember that in order to attain and maintain good health, you must eat good food.

You must eat the right kind of food and have a balanced ration.

You must cultivate good eating habits.

You must not over-eat. Avoid too much meat and too many sweets.

You must have plenty of milk and plenty of vegetables.

Observe these rules and you will avoid malnutrition and will have taken a most important step toward the avoidance of preventable disease.

Food supplies all the energy needed for carrying on the bodily activities; it supplies the materials for the growth and repair of the body; it contains substances which regulate the organs so that each one does its share. This adequate and proper functioning constitutes good health.

You should understand that sickness does not always necessarily follow undernourishment or poor food. It is more important, however, that you understand that if your body is undernourished, your resistance to bacteria is lowered and you extend an open invitation to disease.

The foods the body needs to supply heat and energy are the animal fats, the vegetable oils and such starchy foods as potatoes, bread, rice, beans and certain other very important substances known as vitamins.

Brain work does not call for more food than does physical labor. The man who is laboring hard physically needs nourishing foods in quantity in order to have the necessary supply of energy for his work.

One meat course a day is perhaps as much animal food as the average body should have. The effect of fish and eggs is practically the same as that of meat, and they may be classed as animal food. Meats leave wastes in the body, that must be thrown off. So an excessive amount of meat taken into the body throws a heavy amount of work on the eliminative organs. This excessive activity of the organs does not make for good health.

Most people do not eat enough vegetables. If possible, at least three green vegetables should be eaten every day. Vegetables furnish food elements which are essential to the body and, in addition, they furnish bulk, which is important.

Vitamins are vital to life. Since vitamins sometimes are destroyed by cooking, some raw food should form a part of the daily diet.

Fruits, lettuce and celery are among the important raw foods which should be eaten. Fruit in particular should form a large part of the diet. Fruits help to prevent constipation, preserve the teeth and supply valuable mineral salts to the body.

Fancy foods and highly seasoned ones are not necessarily unhealthful, but plain food usually furnishes more nourishment, and is cheaper.

The "Throw Down"

Promoted By Journalism

Pasadena Star-News

Journalism is contributing mightily to the promotion of the cause of peace. American ideas and ideals, in particular, are fostering peace throughout the world. Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press, addressing the Institute of Politics, spoke inspiringly of the "all-inclusive" type of journalism which has been evolved in recent years—the daily history of the world, comprehensively given in the newspapers. The great press associations are developing this idea. Mr. Cooper himself, as head of one of the greatest news-distributing associations in the world, is a zealous exponent of this type of world-enveloping news service. To use his own words:

I contend that the commendable intent is to interest people in the world in which we live. The larger the interest the more thoroughly will the information be absorbed and the more general and the more enlightened will be the public opinion on matters of prime importance.

The more the peoples of the world know about each other, the better they will understand each other, the more friendly they will be and the less likelihood of serious trouble. The press associations are doing a splendid thing, and the newspapers are co-operating, in gathering news from all parts of the world and in giving it display, to show broad spirit, and to cultivate public interest in happenings and sentiment in far-away lands.

Worth While Verse

VACATION TIME

It seems to me I'd like to go Where bells don't ring nor whistles blow,
Nor clocks don't strike, nor gongs don't sound,
And I'd have stillness all around.

Not really stillness, but just the trees'
Low whisperings, or the hum of bees,
Or brooks' faint babbling over stones
In strangely, softly tangled tones.

Or maybe a cricket or katydid,
Or the songs of birds in the hedges hid,
Or just some such sweet sounds as these
To fill a tired heart with ease.

If 'tweren't for sight and sound and smell
I'd like a city pretty well,
But when it comes to getting rest
I like the country lots the best.

Sometimes it seems to me I must Just quit the city's din and dust,
And get out where the sky is blue,
And say, now, how does it seem to you?

An Irish Courtship

Kansas City Star

Courtship in Ireland is not the simple affair that it is in some countries. For Paddy, always a politician, has an eye to the main chance. And somewhere he has read that beauty is only skin deep. Having done he becomes engaged to a girl who has nothing but looks in her favor. In fact, his courtship is hedged round by preliminaries that would cool many a girl's ardor.

Having noticed a girl that he would like to marry, Pat does not proceed to make love to her. That would create a scandal. Instead, he usually seeks a go-between to plead his cause and to approach the father, whose consent is always necessary before a young man may even walk out with a young girl. This go-between or matchmaker, often called the "mountain-man," is found in every village and is almost invariably endowed with unlimited audacity and speech, as though he had kissed the blarney stone.

The matchmaker first insidiously creates an atmosphere. He talks with the girl, telling her what an "illegant feller" Pat is and what a nifty cottage he has on his two acres, "wid a new thatch on ut, so it has." Also the cow, the pigs and the hens. Then he talks about it in the shop and in the saloon till all the countryside knows that Paddy wants to marry Bridget Malone. Then certain that Bridget's father has heard the rumor and has had time to think it over, the "mountain-man" sallies forth with the swain to the father's house, a large bottle of best Irish, provided by the prospective bridegroom, in his pocket. He begins by reminding the father that it is high time his daughter got married and follows it up with the suggestion that if she doesn't hurry about it, he will surely have to keep her all her life.

"Sure Bridget will soon be on the shelf if you don't watch ut," he warns the father.

"And what way would she be la-

Human Traits in Plants

Westminster Gazette

Sir Chandra Bose, professor of the Presidency college, Madras, is noted throughout the world for his researches into plant life.

Plants, he said in a lecture to the Royal Horticultural Society, in London, had hearts which pulsed, and leaf muscles which could expand and contract, and were sensitive, like human beings, to emotion.

"When I applied a test to see what amount of electrical shock it took for a human tongue to perceive the sensation, as compared with the amount required by a plant," said Dr. Bose, "I found the human being required ten times as much."

He was measuring the life pulsations of a plant, which were very regular, when suddenly they became feeble, indicating depression. Looking for a cause, he observed a faint cloud passing over the sun. The plants "spirits" rose immediately when the cloud passed. The plant "spoke" and wrote its life's history with its leaves. The stems joining the leaf to the stem relaxed and the leaf dropped. In excessive heat or cold the energy of the plant became sluggish.

An important discovery was that when introduced poison into a plant, the life pulsations came gradually to a stop. Yet with a drug made from deadly poison, he had revived a dying plant.

The same drug had proved capable of re-energizing a man on the point of death.

Plant life, he added, was so closely allied to that of man that the experience of a human from a plant on plants might be applied to the cure of human ills.

Close-ups of History

Wichita Beacon

Can you conceive of a motion picture of Columbus starting out on his voyage that culminated in the discovery of America? or of Henry M. Stanley finding Livingstone in darkest Africa?

And yet the world has motion pictures of the beginning the progress and the conclusion of one of the most epochal journeys of discovery ever made, that of Richard E. Byrd who flew to the North Pole and back.

The film which shows this important chapter in history in living photographs is as thrilling as a melodrama.

As the technic of motion picture photography is improved and simplified, it becomes more and more possible to record great events and powerfully dramatic occurrences. Important actions in the world war have been thus preserved. The photograph of an Eskimo, capturing walrus and fighting his valiant battle against starvation proves to be a real movie thriller. Phases of great volcanic eruptions are preserved. A real fight with a great whale in which a boat is overturned and lives threatened with extinction is made a part of a romantic photodrama. If there is ever again such an epochal event as the signing of the Declaration of Independence, it will be preserved so that future centuries may see the actual motions and emotions of the participants.—The Wichita Beacon.

The 6,000,000 Backward

Topeka Capital

There are 6,000,000 retarded children in the United States. The economic waste caused by their backwardness amounts into millions of dollars. But what is more important is the terrific, human loss represented here.

Poor eyes and poor light are blamed for most of this, according to Guy A. Henry, director of the Eyesight Conservation Council of America. Neglected eyesight is largely responsible for backward pupils. The average cost of educating a school child is $64.16 a year. A conservative estimate of this proportion of retardation due to defective vision indicates a direct loss to the country of $130,- 000,000 annually. That is but a small part of the total economic and human loss when future inefficiency, lowered earning power and less competent service of the individual are considered.

Twenty-five million workers have defective vision. About $30,000,000 of the annual industrial waste is charged directly to poor lighting.

Poor eyesight develops when children are allowed to do close work under inadequate illumination. Eye strain brings on fatigue and inefficiency and waste of vitality, effort, time and material. Watch the eyes and the light.
